Having been actively employed in London for the last ten years, in purchasing and shipping on behalf of various constituents, and for the last three years on behalf of the Government of New South Wales, he flatters himself that he possesses information and experience which could only be obtained by others who have had the same facilities; and with a determination to confine himself exclusively to commission business, he now offers his services to any house or individual that may require them. HOOP IRON for SALE.—Apply to Mr. GREEN, HERALD Office.

MOREWOOD'S PATENT GALVANIZED TINNED IRON.—An explanation respecting this article has become necessary. The patent (taken out by Messrs. Morewood and Rogers) has from the commencement been worked exclusively by Messrs Walker of the Gospel Oak-street Mills, Tipton, Staffordshire, and upon the failure of Morewood and Rogers, Messrs Walker continued to sell the article through the house in London (trading under the name of "Morewood and Co."), who purchased the business of Morewood and Rogers.

But at Lady Day last, the firm at Gospel Oak withdrew an exclusive sale to Messrs. Morewood and Co., and announced its intention to sell through all London merchants. There are, therefore, two metals called "Morewood's patent" now in the market—the one manufactured at the Gospel Oak Work, soo long favourably known in the colonies; the other being sheet iron bought by Morewood and Co., from various makers, and galvanized by themselves. It has become necessary, therefore, to prevent mistake as to quality, to quote the first as "Morewood's patent."

"WALKER'S G. anchor O. brand."

August, 16th.

HOWARD'S PLOUGHS.—JAMES and FREDERICK HOWARD, Britannia Iron Works, Bedford, England, have received from the Royal Agricultural Society of England more first prizes for ploughs, harrows, and horse rakes, than any other maker. Their champion ploughs are now made almost entirely of wrought iron; in this, as well as other respects, they are therefore thoroughly adapted for Colonial purposes, and are constructed so as to require but little space in packing. Many thousands of their implements are exported every year to all parts of the world: the requirements of the different colonies are consequently well understood. JAMES and FREDERICK HOWARD are not only the largest manufacturers in the world, of ploughs, but also of iron harrows, horse rakes, and steam ploughs or cultivators. Illustrated catalogues of the above, and further information can be obtained on application to

BEILBY and SCOTT,
New Pitt-street, opposite Oriental Bank.

RIDLEY'S improved ANTI-CORROSION PAINT, for painting and preserving iron ships, and all kinds of external wood, iron, plaster, stucco, and brickwork.—The superiority of the above article over every other description of paint for the preservation of outbuildings, &c., has been evinced by the extraordinary increased demand which the manufacturers have of late had for it. Two coats of the anti-corrosion will render wood or iron work, however exposed, impervious to the weather. It is an effectual remedy for preventing the leakage of walls of a porous quality, and will be found one of the cheapest and best preparations ever used for weatherboard buildings, verandahs, sashes of all kinds, tiles to represent slates, and gutters, as it equally resists the effects of heat and moisture. It is the best possible covering for stucco, plaster, and brick work; gates, iron ships, palisading, and hurdles; wood fences, carts, and other agricultural implements. The colour most frequently used presents the appearance of fine Portland stone; but other colours may be used. W. G. SPRIGG and CO., Wynyard-square, Sydney; and SPRIGG, ADDISON, and CO., Melbourne, agents for the Australian colonies.

GALVANISED IRON, 24, 26, 28 gauge, Morewood and Co., and Tupper and Co.—ASHDOWN and CO. have for SALE a further supply of the above, just landed, in excellent condition. Also Morewood and Rogers' patent galvanised iron tiles. ASHDOWN and CO. (late Woolley's), George and King streets.

TO BUILDERS, CONTRACTORS, and others.—ASHDOWN and CO. having received, and made arrangements for continuous shipments of Builders' Ironmongery, Tools, &c., of every description, they have determined on selling at reduced prices, and solicit the patronage of the above. ASHDOWN and CO., (late Woolley's). George and King streets.

TO PARTIES FURNISHING.—ASHDOWN and CO. invite attention to their large and varied assortment of new goods, of that superior quality that this establishment has been so long celebrated, and which they are disposing of at reduced prices. ASHDOWN and CO. (late Woolley's). George and King streets.

IN the Estate of W. G. AINSWORTH, of York-street, Ironmonger and Importer of Agricultural Implements.—The Stock on hand is now ON SALE under Mr. Ainsworth's management, at prices less than cost. The public would do well to supply themselves previous to the general clearance sale. A few of the articles are here enumerated.

PURE EXTRACT of TOBACCO,
Manufactured by the South Down Company, in Boston, U. S. America.

This new and valuable preparation for sheep wash is highly recommended for safety, convenience, utility, and economy. It is a concentrated extract, one pound of which is equal to ten pounds of tobacco, retaining in this compact form all the properties of the raw material, at the same time saving the very disagreeable and tedious operation of preparing the wash, as usually practised. The only labour required, with the article we now offer to the public, is to stir the paste into the quantity of water needed for the sheep that are intended to be dipped. This Sheep Wash is highly rec

TRANSIT DEPOT.—CONVEYANCE of GOODS to the INTERIOR.—The great inconvenience which has been long experienced for want of some organised plan for facilitating the conveyance of goods into the interior, has induced the undersigned, at the suggestion of many mercantile houses and friends, to make an attempt to remedy the grievance—this, it is thought may be effected by opening a store where goods can be received for transit into the country.
By this plan, it will be evident that much trouble and annoyance will be saved to parties having goods to forward if they send them to the depot, from whence they will be loaded and sent to their destination, by careful and trustworthy carriers.
Owners of teams will be saved the time which is now wasted by them in searching the city for goods, as by calling or writing to the undersigned, it is hoped that loading will be always ready for them.
The advertiser would beg to state that, during the last ten years he has sent many thousand tons of goods into different parts of the colony, and such has been his care in selecting steady and careful carriers, that he has never had to charge any one with deficiency or loss of any of their loading.
Further particulars will be announced as soon as arrangements are completed; in the interim, any information can be obtained by applying to

The English mail, per Jeddo, arrived at Adelaide yesterday, with news from England to the 27th September. The following is the substance of our commercial telegrams:—The English funds have improved a quarter per cent. on the prices ruling on the 27th of August. Consols are quoted at 93¼ to 93¼ for money, and 93¼ to 93⅜ for the account 16th October. The Bank of England rate of discount is 4 per cent. New South Wales Government debentures are steady, and those due in 1886, are quoted at 98¼ to 100¼.

The wool market since the close of the public sales is reported as being firmer, but prices are not given. There was some inquiry for France, but few sales were made at the public sales; however, there was a reduction in prices on all but first-class wools.

The shipments to the colonies from the 9th of August to the 8th of September have considerably decreased, as compared with the shipments of last month.

TALLOW is firm, and Australian has been quitted at 49s. for middling, and 47s. for ordinary.

HIDES are in fair demand, and have improved ¼d. per lb.

The amount of gold coin issued by the Sydney branch of the Royal Mint during the week ended (to-day) November 9th, has been 23,000 sovereigns.

The quantity of gold dust imported into the same establishment during the week for the purpose of coinage has been 9601 ounces.

The Western, Southern, and Northern escorts have arrived during the week from our several gold-fields, and have delivered at the Sydney Branch of the Royal Mint the following quantities of gold-dust:—Western: From Sofala, 671 ozs. 2 dwts. 12 grs.: Bathurst, 575 ozs. 6 dwts.: Louisa Creek, 571 ozs. 6 dwts. 10 grs.: Tambaroora, 561 ozs. 17 grs.; Stoney Creek, 469 ozs. 5 dwts. Southern:—From Braidwood, 1269 ozs. 9 dwts. 6 grs.; Adelong, 1052 ozs. 11 dwts. 13 grs.; Tumberumba, 88 ozs. 7 dwts.; Kiandra, 1174 ozs. 3 dwts. Northern: From Rocky River, 285 ozs. 9 dwts. 10 grs.; Nundle, 344 ozs 7 dwts. 12 grs.; Tamworth, 45 ozs. 2 dwts. Total, 7090 ozs. 7 dwts. 9 grs.

The share market is still active, and an average amount of business has been transacted in the shares of our different securities. Colonial Bank shares are in fair request, and prices are well maintained. There is still a desire to invest in steam shares, the prices of which are firm, and have an upward tendency. The following are the prices at which sales have been made during the week. Bank of New South Wales, £35 10s. per share; Commercial Bank, £43 10s. per share; Australian Joint Stock Bank, £11 5s. per share; Australasian Steam Navigation Company, £18 10s. per share: Illawarra Steam Navigation Company, £5 and £4 17s. 6d. per share; Hunter River New Steam Navigation Company, £11 per share; General Assurance Company, £8 10s. per share: Sydney Assurance Company, 45s. per share; Newcastle Coal and Copper Company, £18 per share; Pyrmont Bridge Company, £3 per share.

DEBENTURES.—Government debentures are very firm: and sales of Terminables, due in 1876, have been made at par and interest. In Interminable we have no transactions to report. Australasian Steam Navigation Debentures have changed hands at half per cent. premium and interest.

The subjoined table will shew the closing quotations of our securities as well as the rates at which business has been done during the week.

Business continues very dull, and the transactions this week have been limited. There is no desire at present to enter into any speculations, and purchases are almost confined to meet present requirements. Our markets generally are without any alteration; but the news by the English mail, which arrived at Melbourne today, will, doubtless, cause some change to take place. Flour is dull of sale, but the millers' quotations are still £20 for fine flour, and £18 for seconds. The large arrivals of wheat that have lately come to hand have somewhat depressed the market, but prices are nominally the same. In liquids there is but little alteration to notice. Brandy is difficult of sale, and Martell's is quoted at 10s. 6d. to 11s., Hennessy's 10s. to 10s. 6d. Rum remains at 4s. 2d. to 4s. 4d. for 30 o.p. Ale in bulk is steady at £7 2s. 6d. to £7 5s. Teas are a little flatter, owing to the late heavy arrivals, and at the late sales by auction a decline of 10s. to 20s. per chest had been submitted to. Sugars are not quite so firm, and sales have been made at a slight decline on previous rates.

RICE is perhaps a little firmer, and sales of Patna have been made at £18 per ton. In coffee there is no alteration to notice, Manila being quoted 18¼d. per lb. in bond. In oilmen's stores, candles, provisions, dried fruits, and other articles, there has been but little doing, and prices generally rule the same as last week.

TOBACCO.—The Homer brings a very large consignment of négrohead, principally consisting of Raven, Barratt, and some new brands. Prices remain at about the same figure. The next arrival from the States will be the Southern Eagle, to leave in all August.

CIGARS.—A large parcel of Havannah shapes were disposed of by the hammer during the week, at 45s. The S. H. Talbot, from Manila, is hourly expected, with about 100 cases as light freight.

MESSRS. W. Dean and Co. held a large sale of teas, sugars, cigars, &c., on Thursday, on account of Messrs. Brown and Co. The balance of the teas ex C. E. Tilton were disposed of at a shade below the last sales of the same teas. Cigars sold at the following prices—Havannah-shapes 45s. 9d., cheroots 40s. Sugars show a slight decline on previous rates.

Messrs. Durham and Irwin held their usual weekly produce sale, this day. Wool: 231 bales were catalogued, but only 48 were offered, and of this quantity 18 were sold; the prices obtained were as follows—fleece at 1s. 10d., greasy at from 9½ to 11½d., scoured skin at 21½d., mixed at from 8d. to 11d. per lb. Sheepskins: Over 6000 were offered this day, all of which were sold at fair prices, considering the large parcels of greasy wool that are now offering; prices obtained ranged thus—full fleeced, 7d. to 9d.; pelts, 3d. per lb. Tallow: The market is quiet; 11 casks inferior were sold at from 30s. 6d. to 40s. 3d. per cwt. Hides: Over 700 were sold this day, and purchased principally for the tanpits, one very superior lot of 90 were placed at 14s.; the prices obtained ranged from 3s. 6d. to 14s. Calfskins at from 7d. to 1s. 6d. each. Kip leather, 22d. per lb. Hair at 5½d. per lb. Horns at 19s. 6d. per 100.

Messrs. L. E. Threlkeld and Co. had an extensive sale of tea and groceries on Wednesday last, comprising the principal portion of the cargo just arrived ex Dragon, from Foochow, which attracted a large attendance of the trade. Considerable anxiety was felt as to the result of this sale, in consequence of the very heavy shipments that had arrived and were expected in this and the sister colony. The first parcel of congous, in chests, was knocked down at £7 per chest; the balance of that number was taken at £6 10s. The second parcel of chests, No. 5, was placed at £7 15s. The first lot of half-chests, No. 2, was placed at £3 10s.; the balance at £3 7s. 6d. The second lot of half-chests No. 6 was sold at £3 4s. to £3 8s. per half-chest. The boxes realised from 19s. 6d. to 23s. per box. The sample of the finest quality was not landed in time to offer—the teas sold being only of medium quality, and the whole of these were disposed of. Several numbers of the shipment, ex Collingwood, were also disposed of at same rates, immediately after the sale of the Dragon's shipment. The same firm sold during the week the balance of shipment of American timber, ex Horsburgh, at considerable advance on recent auction sales; also the balance of Hargrave's cargo, from Hobart Town, at 15s. for shingles; 10s. to 11s. for timber; 11s. for battens; 11s. for inch boards; 13s. 6d. for 5-feet box palings; 12s. for 6-feet common palings; 9s. 6d. for 5-feet common palings.

STOCK AND SHARE LISTS.

[BARTON AND SONS.]

THE share market has not been so brisk this week as last, and we have, consequently, a moderate amount of sales to report. Capital is more freely offered for investment, but securities are scarce. Joint Stock and Australasian Steam shares are enquired for at last prices; there is, also, a fair demand for Government debentures. Our sales this week have been, in New South Wales Bank at £35 10s.; General Assurance at £8 10s.; and Government debentures, due in 1876, at par and interest accrued.
9 h. November.

[LENNON AND CAPE.]

We report a fair amount of business in this market during the past week. Australian Joint Stock Bank, Australasian Steam and Newcastle Coal and Copper Company's shares have been enquired for, and have an upward tendency. Newcastle Wallsend Coal shares are also sought after, at about 10 per cent. premium, but as yet we have heard of no actual sales. Our sales during the week have been, in Bank of New South Wales, at £35 10s.; Commercial Bank at £43 10s.; Australian Joint Stock Bank at £11 5s.; Australasian Steam, at £18 10s.; Illawarra Steam Company, at £5; Newcastle Coal and Copper Company, at £18; Pyrmont Bridge Company, at £3; Australasian Steam Navigation Company debentures, redeemable, 1864, at 101 and interest.

[J. MULLINS.]

THERE has been a fair amount of business during this week, and some stocks are still sought for. I have sold a fair quantity of Australian Joint Stock Bank shares, and still have orders unexecuted at quoted prices. Newcastle Wallsend Coal Company's shares are sought at a premium, but there are none in the market for sale; as much as 10½ per cent. has been offered and declined. I am still a buyer of Gas shares at full rates.
My sales during the week have been:—Australian Joint Stock Bank shares, at £11 5s.; Illawarra Steam Company's shares, at £4 17s. 6d.; Sydney Insurance Company's shares, at £1 5s.; Newcastle Coal and Copper Company's shares, at £18.
Loans on freehold property negotiated at current rates.
November 9th.

STOCK AND STATION CIRCULARS.

[MR. BREWSTER.]

STATIONS.—There are no properties changing hands at present, although there are buyers in the market for good sheep stations in Queensland.
STORE CATTLE.—No improvement to notice in the demand, and little business doing. I have sold one lot during the week, consisting of 500 head, equal sexes, ages 2 to 7, at 32s per head, cash, delivered on the Balonne. Prices remain nominal.
STORE SHEEP.—Breeding ewes are enquired for, but very few offering; sales can be made at from 5s to 13s, according to age. For wethers there is not much demand, and the prices offered are not tempting enough for holders to close.
FAT STOCK.—This market is well supplied with both cattle and sheep. Prices not so firm as last week's quotations.
Squatter's Exchange, George-street.

[RAYMOND AND CO.]

FAT CATTLE.—This market still continues to be well supplied. We observe no alteration from last week's quotations. We quote prime quality at 15s per 100 lbs.; second quality at from £1 18s to £4.
FAT SHEEP.—Good heavy weights in demand. We quote first quality, with wool on, from 16s to 17s 5d; second quality, 11s to 15s; ewes, first quality, 14s; second quality, 11s to 12s 6d.
STORE CATTLE.—This market very quiet, the only demand being from Queensland for breeding purposes. The southern market shows little signs of improvement. Prices about the same as quoted by us last week.
STORE SHEEP.—The demand for store wethers very limited; young breeding ewes more inquired after, particularly for stocking runs. We quote them, delivered after shearing, 12s to 14s 6d.
STATIONS.—There is a good demand for fattening stations near a market; such command high prices. Also unstocked or thinly stocked blocks to the north.
WOOL.—Great disinclination to purchase at present rates has been evinced, there being a general disposition to wait the arrival of the September mail, consequently nearly all the wool that has arrived this week has either been shipped on owner's account, or withdrawn from the market for the present. We have, however, effected sales of two parcels this week (privately), at rates fully equal to those obtained last year. By our private telegraphic advice received this morning, per Jeddo via Adelaide, we learn that late rates were fully maintained, and that the sales had closed satisfactorily.
HIDES.—From our Adelaide telegram, we also learn that hides were in good request in the London market, at slightly advanced rates; the market here, this last week, has shown some firmness, and will, no doubt, be further favourably influenced by the news per Jeddo.
TALLOW.—This market has been nominally the same, very little offering; the quantity sold realised last week's quotations. The English news does not appear to be of a character likely to influence this market.
Treasury Buildings, George-street, Sydney November 8.

[R. FORBES.]

STATIONS.—Excepting in fat cattle runs there is nothing doing; any really good, well situated, half-stocked, and well watered, not too far from Sydney, would command £4 to £5 per head.
FAT CATTLE MARKET fully supplied. Prime heavy beasts command £8 to £8, inferior, £5 10s to £6, prices looking down.
FAT SHEEP.—Wethers, shorn, and very good, will fetch 16s. Mrs. Brown's flock of wethers, 19·0, fleece on, delivered at Muswellbrook, sold for 16s.
WOOL CLIPS.—There is little inclination to invest, even at reduced rates.
STORE CATTLE.—Wethers may be quoted as plentiful, prices 10s to 11s 6d, ewes 11s to 12s. In Queensland young ewes are fetching 13s to 17s, wethers 13s to 15s. At Dumbleyung shorn wethers command 10s to 11s.

[MR. THOMAS DAWSON.]

FAT CATTLE.—The market fully supplied. I have therefore no change for the better to report during the week; prices remain at last week's quotations.
FAT SHEEP.—The same remarks will apply to this stock, no improvement on last week's report—say, for prime wethers, 13s 6d to 15s 6d.
STORE SHEEP AND CATTLE.—The market exceedingly quiet, nothing doing in either description of stock; any quantity in the hands of the agents for sale.
HORSES.—A steady demand for good upstanding unbroken animals.
PRODUCE SALES at the Railway Terminus.—Fat calves, from 27s to 37s each; turkeys, 3s each; butter, from 6d to 10d per lb; eggs, 3½d to 1s per dozen; hay, £4 to £6 15s per ton; sheep, 10s to 16s each.

WO

THE DEFEAT, AND THE DISSOLUTION.

"We would not seek a battle as we are,
Nor as we are, we say, we will not shun it."
Henry V.

"I will, Sir, flatter my sworn brother, the people, to earn a dearer estimation of them."—Coriolanus.

It is of course impossible for a man of ordinary spirit to contemplate the recent position of Ministers without feeling contempt and disgust. That any set of bipeds should so hug their own disgrace: should rejoice in pay divorced from trust, and office stripped of power; should be content to threaten without exciting fear, to quibble and prevaricate without deceiving, seems a slur on the dignity of civilized man. As far, however, as the mere spectacle of degradation goes, the community need not trouble themselves overmuch. It was a cruel policy that led the Spartans to exhibit themselves grovelling in intoxication as a lesson of temperance to their children. But if a few Helots had got "promiscuously" fuddled at a scurry, and paraded themselves in nauseous helplessness, the warning might not have been useless to young Sparta, and the blame could hardly have been laid at the door of the nation. To speak in the vernacular, it would have been "their own look-out." On a like principle, we could not break our hearts because Messrs. Robertson and Co. were a discredited and insolvent firm. True, it is the fault of the country that such men were ever allowed to figure as a Government; but if they insisted on remaining pillowed in their unseemly elevation; if (as they were recently told) they had neither the spirit of men nor the resignation of Christians, we could not help it—it was "their own look-out." Nor was their servile tenacity of place altogether without profit to the community. For awhile, at least, there has been a truce to revolutionary projects. If confidence has not been restored, alarm has not been renewed. The financial scheme for raising a minimum of revenue with a maximum of labour and cost is consigned for the present to the limbo of fools. There will be no immediate struggle for a democratic Upper Chamber. The suicidal attempt to discourage Chinese immigration is gone—to what Mr. Mantalini calls "the demnition bow-wows." We may take breath and look about us; too happy, if we open our eyes to the follies of the past and the perils of the future—if we learn, though late, that the domination of ignorance is the worst despotism; that the cry of a mob for pillage is no warrant for confiscation.

We have had the further comfort of seeing that the business of the nation has been advancing after a fashion; advancing, too, faster than it might have done had the Cabinet been allowed to indulge their mania for legislative meddling. The House dictated the course to be pursued, and the administrative routine was sure to be carried out while we had Mr. Cowper's experience and industry to compensate the inefficiency of his colleagues. Nay, taking the Ministry as a whole, they might do their journey-work none the worse for their abject position. Coarse natures may have a respectable aptness for drudgery. There is an American tribe—Guahibas, if our memory serves us—who eat clay voraciously, and are found to carry burthens with singular patience. We may have worse evils than a "Guahiba" Administration.

But if Ministers were to retain place and pay on this sorry tenure, we felt that there must be no mistake as to their position. They must give themselves no airs. We have read of a tortoise whose head was opened by some hard-hearted naturalist, the brains removed, and the skull bound together again. It was a week before the creature found out that it was gone blind, and nearly a month before it fairly died. But this was an honest beast, though dull and slow, and never pretended to have fine nerves or a thin skin, or to belong to a nobler order than that of Reptilia. Now Mr. Robertson and his colleagues in the Assembly chose to make pitiful but most outrageous claims to be something higher in the scale of creation than their case-hardened tenacity of life would indicate. Mr. Arnold, especially, assumed a tone of insolent defiance towards the House, such as not even the highest public character, the most conspicuous services, and the most independent position have ever yet been supposed to warrant. "The Ministry have no confidence in the House!" "The Ministry have condemned the House!"

Tall talking this!—"as prave words, look you, as you shall hear of a summer's day." Perhaps the honorable Secretary was haunted by some theatrical memories of Coriolanus, and "I banish you!" But then he should have remembered that Coriolanus's heroism went in part excuse of his arrogance; and, moreover, that in the utterance of this parting vaunt he at least respected the Roman constitution, and submitted in fact to that exile which he retorted in metaphor. Perhaps some thoughts of a Cromwellian precedent came over him—thoughts of ordering away "that bauble," of locking the door and putting the key in his Protectorial pocket. But, unhappily, Mr. Arnold was living under a monarchy, was paid his salary by a Parliamentary vote, and had not just then an army at his back. Altogether, the absurdity of the Minister's language was lost in its extreme indecorum. Responsible Government could not afford to be any farther travestied. With a very low average of education, we have made the suffrage almost universal, and have rendered it difficult, though, we trust, not impossible, for property and intelligence to stand their ground against the aggressive tendencies of needy and hot-headed ignorance. Our House of Assembly is too much hampered by vulgar loquacity to work well; and with Mr. Robertson to draw bills and his late tail to endorse them, our Legislative paper has been in a fair way to be dishonoured. But if from a Parliament as democratic as that which "Works" thought it decent to defy, there was yet to be an immediate appeal to the passions of the mob without, whenever any Ministerial crotchet was not bolted whole—if Ministers, trusting to a good cry, were to insult even the majority to which they owed their places—if the House, in short, was to be patronised by its creatures, and dictated to by its servants, there was an end of all semblance of constitutional Government. Better at once to get rid of the shadow of a Parliament, and cry "Long live Jack Brag the First, Autocrat of New South Wales!"

The vote of last night, then, was indispensable for upholding what little of dignity remained to a House which had Dr. Lang for its expositor of morals, and Hoskins for its "Professor of Deportment." It was a successful protest against a mixed system of quibbling and brow-beating—of menace and equivocation. That such a vote should have issued in a needless, not to say absurd appeal to the constituencies, is a matter for which the majority are not responsible. They were bound to speak out, whatever reticence there might be in other quarters. A happy constitutional fiction renders it needless for us to comment on the conduct of the Governor-General in granting a dissolution—to such men, at such a time, and on such a pretext. His "responsible advisers" must bear the blame; and it would be a sore burthen even for stronger men. We are not unaware that a great cry has gone forth—a cry addressed to the needy and greedy throughout the colony—which may stengthen the hands of Ministers in the coming election. We know that a proposal for a general seizure and distribution of real property would, in populous towns, win more support than even clause 13. We know, too, that none of the ways and means of corruption will be overlooked by the present Cabinet—that influential electors will have "free selection" in the matter of their reward, and may be requited with a district court, a constable's staff, or the commission of the peace, according to their respective incapacity. But for all these things a day of reckoning will come: the men who have traded on popular discontent will be the victims of popular disappointment, and neither dodging nor bullying will shelter them from reaping the whirlwind as they have sowed the wind. When that day shall arrive (and it may be nearer than these salaried agitators imagine), their advice to his Excellency at the present crisis will not be forgotten; no, nor the unworthy arts by which they have made that advice work an unfair as well as a mischievous result. It will not be the lightest count in the indictment against them, that they betrayed the confidence and abused the name of her Majesty's representative; nay, almost contrived to implicate him in the discredit of their own shabby manœuvres.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

At length our "Ministerial crisis" has come to a head, and honorable members are to be sent "to the country." Ministers have been fairly beaten, and have been called upon in distinct terms to resign; but they do not, it seems, believe in resignations.

The Premier and his colleagues came down, as we mentioned last week, with a request for six months' Supply. The Assembly refused to grant it to them. Still they clung to office. An attempt was next made to give precedence to the Estimates. This also was resisted, and Ministers quietly submitted to go on with the ordinary business. Well, the Estimates came on at last, and the House galloped through them at racing speed until it pleased honorable members to stop. The tenacity with which the individuals composing the present Government stuck to their offices was such as to make even their supporters feel scandalised, and many of these showed their feelings by quitting the House.

On Thursday, when it was proposed to go again into a Committee of Supply, Mr. Roberts moved an amendment to the effect that the conduct of the Ministers in retaining their offices despite of adverse votes was unconstitutional. After a protracted and somewhat dreary debate, this amendment was carried on division by a majority of 36 to 29; that is to say, by a majority of one against Ministers.

But the latter cared not for this. They have, they say, no confidence in the House, and it seems a piece of impertinence for the House to say that it had no confidence in them. So they keep their places and go to the country.

Some other measures have been partially discussed in either House, but of course they came to nothing.

Parliament has been prorogued by Proclamation to-day, but it is quite understood that it is to be dissolved in the same mode to-morrow.

A set of camp colours has been presented by the ladies of Newtown to the volunteer rifle corps organised in that suburb. We are sorry to say that, in connection with this event, which ought to have created none but the most pleasurable reminiscences, there has arisen a very uncomfortable kind of bickering among some of the volunteers themselves. The members of the Newtown corps were naturally desirous on this occasion to parade with their rifles, but certain members of another suburban company, conceiving themselves to be at least as well advanced in drill, objected to the issue of these rifles unless they, also, were armed. A protest to this effect having been made to the proper officer of the Government, the promised issue of rifles to the Newtown volunteers was stayed, and they were compelled to parade and receive their camp colours unarmed. There has been quite a little newspaper war on this subject. On one side it is maintained that the objection was quite called for, and that it would be unfair to issue arms to one company in preference to another. On the other side it is contended that the intervention of the objectors was frivolous and ill-natured, that the object sought was plainly not to obtain any advantage or assume any superiority, but simply to make a better display in the presence and in honour of the fair givers of their camp colours. We offer no opinion on either side, but would gently hint that these bickerings tend to create permanent ill feelings, which must impair the efficiency of any corps—that such squabbles are not gentlemanly and very unsoldierlike. The volunteers are enrolled for the same object, why should there not be among them an unity and harmony of action in all things connected with that object? They may be called upon some day to act together. They will scarcely do so with thorough efficiency, unless there is harmony throughout the ranks.

Other presentations of colours are talked of. We trust that every local corps will be thus honoured by the ladies of its particular district.

The Volunteer Company at Waterloo, although necessarily organised as a company of riflemen, is to be drilled also as a company of sappers. This is a capital idea. Should an enemy ever land, the landing will most probably be at or near Botany, and a well-organised company of sappers would be able to oppose serious impediments to the advance of a hostile force through the swamps and scrub which lie between the bay and Sydney.

Two cottages at Balmain have been destroyed by fire. They were small, and built of wood, and were rapidly consumed. The inmates were all saved, but their furniture was destroyed. The cottages belonged to Mr. Creig, a shipbuilder, who occupied one of them, the other being let. The fire is believed to have originated through Mrs. Creig having snuffed a candle (when she rose to look at her sick child) and left the snuffers on the tablecloth. Mr. Creig was insured, but his tenant has lost everything.

A man named Simpson fell from the ketch Unity, late on Saturday evening, while in a state of intoxication, and was drowned.

Joseph Brown, an old man, who was usually employed in cleaning out the George-street Market, and who was in the habit of spending his earnings in drink at the end of each week, fell over the Pyrmont Bridge upon some stones, while in a state of intoxication, and was so severely hurt that he has since died.

Quin Su, a Chinese, aged 36, employed as a charcoal-burner at Irishtown, has died suddenly from the combined effects of a diseased liver with want of proper care and nourishment.

A man named Stokes, while labouring under the effects of drink, went into a chemist's shop in George-street, and having procured sixpennyworth of opium, drank it off. His apparent object was self-destruction, but the dose which he took had rather a beneficial effect upon his system than otherwise, for it stayed the attack of delirium tremens.

Huy Chee, a Chinese miner, at Little River, in the Braidwood district, has been killed by the falling in of the earth upon him while he was at work at the bottom of his shaft.

Arthur Hastings Burns, aged from two to three years, the second child of Mr. J. F. Burns, of Maitland, has been killed by getting entangled in the machinery of his father's mill. Death, it is said, must have been instantaneous.

A child, named John Skehan, has been killed by falling over the precipice, known as the Argyle-street cut, at the spot where it crosses Fort-street. The fence had got out of repair at this spot, and although the officers of the City Corporation disclaimed responsibility for this, the Coroner's jury very properly held that they were bound to look to it at once and effectually. Accidents of this nature must be guarded against, so far as human prudence will permit; and from whom is this guardianship to be expected if not from our "city fathers."

Swan, who having been sentenced to death for the Bunny Creek murder, and has had his sentence commuted to penal servitude for life, has been making strong protestations of his innocence, to which, of course, little weight is attached. The commutation of his sentence, which puzzles a great many, is said to have arisen from a barely possible assumption that, notwithstanding the completeness of the chain of circumstances, Barton might have been assassinated at a time when Swan was proved to have been elsewhere.

There have been very severe hailstorms in various parts of the country. At Molong especially, the growing crops, and even the fences, have been greatly injured by these means.

Accounts from Kiandra and some other places are conflicting, but the "gold news" is, upon the whole, good. At Lambing Flat, at the Braidwood goldfields, and at some other places, miners are said to be doing decidedly well.

An iguana has been killed while in the act of swallowing a lead-coloured snake, about four feet long.

Several large snakes have been killed at various places. These reptiles seem to be peculiarly numerous and active this year.

The Rev. W. Cuthbertson has lectured at the Wollongong School of Arts on "The Poets of the People."

Three men named Collins, Landragan, and Jackson stole three horses from Lambing Flat diggings, and were overtaken by the police after a great deal of tracking. Jackson succeeded in making his escape, but the other two were captured.

The third of a series of lectures on Structural and Systematic Botany was delivered by Mr. C. Moore, director of the Botanic Garden, on Monday, and the fourth lecture of the same series on Thursday.

Dr. O'Doherty delivered, on Monday, before the members of the Catholic Young Men's Society of the Sacred Heart, a lecture on his "Thoughts and Adventures during a Voyage to Australia."

On the same evening there was a general meeting of members of the Waverley School of Arts, at which Mr. Paterson, of Waverley, gave a series of microscopic illustrations, and Mr. St. Julian read a paper on Rambles and Sports in the Bush.

George Baldock, a seaman, belonging to the Rock City, having fallen into the water while in a state of intoxication, was so much injured by the shock that he died soon afterwards.

There was a social tea meeting at the Presbyterian Church of St. John, Paddington, on Monday evening.

Alexander T. Speer, a man of thirty-two, who formerly occupied a very respectable position, but who had become an inveterate drunkard, has died in a fit produced by indulgence of this nature. Thus it will be seen there have been four sudden deaths from drunkenness in this city during the past week.

The second Australian Subscription Boat Club regatta of this season came off on Saturday last, and was spiritedly conducted. It is expected that the arrangements for the next anniversary regatta will be more perfect than they have been for some years past.

Arrangements have been made for a regatta in Woolloomooloo Bay on Boxing Day.

The influenza has again shown itself in the Braidwood District.

The usual monthly lecture before the Church of England Sunday School Association was delivered on Tuesday, Mr. A. Gordon was the lecturer, and his subject "The Third Missionary Journey of the Apostle Paul."

The first of a new series of prayer-meetings was held at the Temperance Hall on Tuesday evening.

The new Wesleyan Church at Balmain was opened for public worship on Wednesday. It is a handsome building, in the gothic style, and will accommodate 400 persons. Its cost has been a little over £2500.

Mrs. Warland, of Stockton, a respectable and particularly sober woman, has committed suicide by cutting her throat, while labouring under a fit of temporary insanity.

The Attorney-General has declined to prosecute Jemima Smith, who was committed for infanticide by the Sydney Coroner—being of opinion that the evidence does not make out a prima facie case.

The Synod of Eastern Australia met on Wednesday, at noon, in the Macquarie-street Church.

Recognition services were held in the Congregational Church, Maitland, in connection with the settlement of the Rev. F. Hill, as pastor of its congregation.

Archbishop Polding has held confirmation services at Wollongong.

The second annual meeting of subscribers to the Governesses' and Servants' Home, was held on Thursday, under the presidency of his Excellency the Governor-General.

A man named George Gerard has been drowned in a well at Ryde.

A public meeting of persons favourable to the course pursued by the Rev. George King, in his dispute with the Bishop of Sydney, was held in St. Andrew's Schoolroom, on Thursday evening. The Mayor of Sydney was called to the chair. There were about 150 persons present, inclusive of a great many ladies. A series of resolutions were adopted, affirming the propriety of Mr. King's proceedings, and condemning those of the Bishop; also pledging the meeting to a subscription for the purpose of defraying the expenses to which Mr. King might be put in the conduct of those legal proceedings which he had deemed it necessary to take.

Preparations are being made in various quarters for the projected champion races in Queensland.

There have been several concerts during the week, calling for no especial mention.

A case, which has been the subject of adjudication at the Central Police Court this week, has not only attracted a good deal of popular attention, but has created some excitement. Mr. Joseph Vickery, an influential member of the Wesleyan body, who is, we believe, over sixty years of age, and is a man of considerable fortune, was adjudged some time since to be the father of an illegitimate child, of which one Jane Durben, who had been a servant in his house, was the mother. He was ordered to pay £1 per week for three years. But, protesting his innocence and refusing to pay, he was sent to gaol. Two days afterwards he was brought before the Supreme Court, on habeas corpus, and, as the warrant of commitment was plainly defective, the Judges declined to exercise their power of amending and sustaining it unless they should be convinced upon a review of the whole case that the order of the magistrates was sustainable on the evidence adduced. Having thus reviewed the case, they held that although Mr. Vickery had been guilty of imprudencies in giving the girl money, and although these imprudencies justified suspicion, they were equally if not more consistent with the assumption of his innocence, and of his object being to screen his youngest son, of whose innocence he had great doubts. They, therefore, refused to amend the warrant, and Mr. Vickery was discharged. Since then he has prosecuted the girl for perjury, but after a protracted investigation the case has been dismissed. There were strong demonstrations of hostility to the prosecutor during the progress of the case, and the dismissal of his complaint was greeted with three cheers. These demonstrations in any court of justice are at all times most unseemly. We wonder the bench permitted them.

GOLD NEWS.

Arrival of upwards of 1150 ounces of Gold, from Lambing Flat.—It is satisfactory to learn that the diggings at Lambing Flat are going a-head, and that with the increase of population, there has been a corresponding increase in the quantity of gold raised. On Monday evening the Yass Branch of the Oriental Bank received 750 ozs. gold-dust from these diggings, which includes the 350 ozs. alluded to in our last as having been purchased by Mr. King, and deposited at Burrowa. On the same day Mr. B. Grogan returned to town from the diggings, whither he had gone with store goods on a speculation. He brought in some twelve or fourteen ozs. On Tuesday Mr. E. Freeman, storekeeper, arrived with 50 ozs., which was subsequently disposed of to the Oriental Bank. The same evening another party reached town, and deposited with the Commercial Bank a parcel of about 350 ozs., making the total quantity received during the last two days about 1160 ozs. It is known that a large quantity, besides, is finding its way into the hands of buyers from Bathurst. We are also informed that many of the flour speculators from the other side of the country take "dust" in preference to money; indeed the latter commodity is sometimes difficult to be got, as there is a general desire amongst storekeepers to buy gold as far as their ready cash will go. The price on the diggings is £3 15s. to £3 16s. 6d; and for very choice samples as high as £3 16s. 9d. has been paid. We hear that a storekeeper on the diggings some time since purchased a considerable quantity of gold at from £3 15s to £3 16s., and, preferring to send it to the Mint on his own account, lately got the return, which, to his amazement, showed its value to be £3 14s. 8d. The weather on the diggings has been very favourable. There is a sufficient quantity of water at present both for "washing" and drinking purposes. At the deep sinking there is a fine undercurrent of water which will keep the surface claims in sufficient supply for cradling, and it is expected that when the land becomes worked to a greater extent, an abundance of water will always be attainable for mining operations. As regards instances of individual success, there is such a similarity in the yield that one or two cases should suffice. We have always stated that these mines produce gold in payable quantities, that living is cheap there, and the labour light. From £3 to £5 a week may be considered a low average, as very many are making a deal more. Two gentlemen who went up to the diggings a month or five weeks ago, and since again visited the place last week, state that to a casual a great improvement in the circumstances of the diggers. When they first went there the miners had but very little money, and they were working very hard to get on. Last week, our informants say that wherever they went there was plenty of cash, and from the amount of drinking and gambling, money seemed to be abundant amongst the population. Two reliable instances of what is being done was communicated to us yesterday. One party, consisting of five persons, were realising eighteen ozs. a week, and a party of three making nearly as much as that. The following may be relied on as a correct price-current of leading articles on the gold-field:—Flour, £35 to £38 per ton. Retail: beef, 4d. per lb.; tea, 3s.; coffee, 2s; sugar, 8d to 9d.; flour, 5d. to 6d.; tobacco, 6s. to 7s.; shovels, 10s. to 10s. 6d. each; galvanised iron buckets, 6s. to 7s. 6d.; cradles, 35s.; brandy, wholesale, 33s. per gallon; rum, 20s. to 25s. according to strength.

Another Account.—A correspondent of the Goulburn Herald writes to that journal as follows:—I lately visited Lambing Flat, Spring Creek, and Stoney Creek, and found at all these places the diggers doing well. I consider that at present there are upwards of 2000 people at these diggings. The sinking varies from four to thirty feet. I have been informed by an old and practical digger that the gold was very patchy. I was shown a beautiful specimen of fine gold, six dwts. 3 grs., which was obtained from four dishes of washing-stuff. I consider Lambing Flat a good poor man's diggings. I have no hesitation in saying that if parties would commence sluicing they would be richly remunerated. The cradle is but a poor means of testing the richness of these diggings. I have been informed by an experienced digger that most of the fine gold is lost in the common cradle.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Bungonia.—The Goulburn Chronicle, of Wednesday, says:—A young man from these diggings came into town yesterday to dispose of his gold. He states that he has been in the neighbourhood of Bungonia for the last three months, and during that time, with four days' work to the week, has realised sufficient gold to keep him comfortably.

The Escaped Prisoners.—It is gratifying (says the same paper) to be able to state that the police have received such intelligence of the prisoners who lately escaped from custody near Shelley's Flats, as affords grounds for hoping that they will ere long be again in safe keeping. The three scoundrels have supplied themselves with horses since their escape, and the route they have taken is pretty well ascertained. Thanks to the telegraph their movements and probable destination have been signalled to the various police stations, and we may calculate on hearing soon of their recapture.

An Alderman in Trouble.—The Albury Banner furnishes us with an exhibition of the strange position in which some of our Australian civic worthies find themselves occasionally. Our contemporary narrates the appearance of a certain alderman of Albury before the police magistrates of that border town, for indulging in the unlawful pastime of assaulting his wife. In the course of the examination the complainant stated that:—"On Friday evening last I was returning home with meat from the town, when I was called into Mr Doubleday's house. Mrs. Doubleday asked me in friendship, and said there was no one to hurt me. Mrs. Doubleday asked me if I would have a drop of gin. I just took a taste drop. My husband came in, and asked what brought me there. He told me I was Doubleday's family friend. My husband kicked and struck me. The marks on my face were given by my husband and another person. He struck me that many times that I could not describe it. He stupified me. It was all done in such a bustle that I cannot say whether he kicked or jumped upon me, or what he did. There was no one present but our own two selves." On cross-examination the alderman's worthy lady observed that "she was not that much tossicated but she knew what she was doing!" The defendant, it is right to say, stoutly denied the charge, alleging that it arose entirely from an hallucination on the part of his "imaginative" partner. Unfortunately, however, for the aldermanic explanation, the testimony of his only witness, Mrs. Bridget Doubleday, whose friendly hospitality it would appear had been the occasion of this trifling marital chastisement, did not corroborate his statement—Mrs. Bridget distinctly averring, that the worshipful defendant knocked the complainant down, and gave her a black eye; qualifying her damnatory evidence, however, by the mitigating statement that "the defendant did not knock her about, he just knocked her down, and gave her a black eye at once." After that evidence, whatever doubt there might have been respecting the severity of the punishment, there could be none concerning its promptitude; and with equal dispatch the Bench condemned the alderman to a fine of £2 and costs, with the option of a month's quietude in the gaol, coupled with the expression of strong hints that if such a method did not succeed in producing an amendment of behaviour, more consonant with propriety, other stringent measures would be adopted—an intimation, however, which only elicited from the defendant a further denial of the assault, and a determination to die in prison before he paid a farthing!

Beware of Snakes in the Grass.—The Yass Courier of Tuesday states that on Sunday last, as Dr. Beales, of Gundaroo, was on his way to visit some of his patients, he had a very narrow escape from being bitten by a snake. On crossing a paddock, where the grass is very long, he trod on the reptile, when it threw back its head and bit his boot on the instep. However, as fortune would have it, its fangs did not penetrate the leather, although they left their marks on it.

County of Argyle.—The number of landholders in the county of Argyle in the year 1859 was 535, the total extent of their holdings being 307,940½ acres. The total number of acres under crop of various kinds was 9888½, leaving 298,052½ acres of the land purchased uncultivated. 4644 acres of the cultivated land were devoted to the growth of wheat, and 175 acres additional of the grain were cropped for hay; 442 acres were sown with barley, and 2897 with oats, 2406 of which were cut for hay. The proportion of the land set apart for vine-growing in Argyle is very small, 4½ acres being set down as the area. The agricultural produce of the county for the year was as follows:—

	Bushels.
Wheat	52,826
Maize	8,830
Barley	4,245
Oats	6,610
Rye	583
Millet	15

To this total of grain there is to be added 1607½ tons of potatoes, 192 cwt. of sorghum and imphee, 166½ tons of wheaten, 47½ of barley, and 1885½ tons of oaten hay, together with 31 tons from sown grasses.—Goulburn Chronicle.

Bathurst Races, 1861.—At a public meeting held at the Club House Hotel, on Monday evening last, Mr. J. De Clouet in the chair, it was unanimously resolved that a club should be formed, to be called the Bathurst Jockey Club, in order, amongst other objects, to carry out efficiently the Bathurst Races for 1861. Thereafter it was resolved that the annual meet shall take place on the 5th, 6th, and 7th of February next. —Bathurst Times.

Flour for Lambing Flat.—Information reached Bathurst a few days since of an extraordinary demand having arisen at Lambing Flat for flour, in consequence of the great rush to the diggings in that locality. A person who had set out for Kiandra from Bathurst, with two tons of flour, reports having arrived at Lambing Flat just as the local stores were exhausted, and that he retailed his stock at about £5 per bag. Mr. Brown, of the Victoria Steam Mill, informs us that he has already sent off two or three tons of flour to Lambing Flat, and will despatch further supplies almost immediately. It is well known that immense quantities of flour have, during the past six months, been sent from this district to that of the Snowy River, where prices, in consequence of the great expense of carriage, have reached an almost fabulous height. The above is the first instance that has come to our knowledge of signal success attending the venture, but we trust it is not the only one by many. The Lambing Flat diggings are very likely to turn out well, and the population will probably continue to increase. Should this be the case, there will be a considerable demand for flour from this district; and as the crops were in a more promising condition, our farmers have a most gratifying prospect before them. — Bathurst Times.

Deniliquin.—From the "Table Talk" of the Pastoral Times, of 3rd instant, we quote the following items of news:—The telegraph wire over the Murray has been twice broken within the last three weeks by the steamers plying on the Murray.—There is no town in the pastoral interior which is so rapidly changing in regard to population, and the advantages which are connected with its increase as Deniliquin.—Snakes and other venomous reptiles are more than usually active this season. A gentleman named Power, from Condoublin, on the Lachlan, was some short time since bringing a mob of cattle to Deniliquin. Crossing the Old Man Plain, Mr. Power, allowing the cattle to graze, sat down and dozed off. During his partial sleep he felt something crawling over his chest, and on opening his eyes beheld a very large brown snake. Terrified somewhat, the bushman jumped to his feet, the bound throwing the animal several feet, thereby giving it a chance of escape which it was not slow to avail itself of. Mr. Power congratulating himself on the dissolution of partnership.—The land sale at Moama, the other day, of land situated at Redbank was a total failure.—Deniliquin is now without one magistrate, and never did we see the town more orderly. Under the careful watchfulness of the chief constable, we believe that the townspeople feel as secure as though the Jupiter Tonans of our police, Mr. Kelly, were in attendance.—The season is still very favourable; warm weather has set in, but its continuance seems questionable.

The Season.—The Goulburn Chronicle of Wednesday says:—Shower and sunshine still continue to give a sort of April variety to the weather. From Wednesday we had a succession of four beautiful days. Sunday again was close and sultry, and towards sunset we were visited with a thunder-storm and a heavy fall of rain. Monday night another thunder-storm, and yesterday cold and cloudy. However much the long-continued rains may have interfered with the comforts of travellers and the conveniences of business men, the season has been peculiarly favourable to vegetation, and from every quarter we hear of the splendid appearance which the country presents. Fruit, unless nipped by untimely frosts, which at this advanced period of the season are not likely to trouble us, promises to be plentiful: and the crops of the farmer afford equally good grounds for anticipating an abundant harvest. That curse of the garden, the aphis, however, has again made its appearance; all remedies are powerless to extirpate this destructive pest, which seems fairly to have established itself in a country which certainly could have well dispensed with any addition to its catalogue of entomological nuisances. On the same topic the Bathurst Free Press of 7th instant remarks: The rule seems to have taken the place of the exception. The season at Bathurst is a decidedly rainy one; so much so, that farmers are now anxiously looking for a settled state of weather in order to commence hay-making. Several farmers, whose farms are near to town, are ready for operations, but are fearful of commencing. Growing cereal crops are improving much in appearance, and the gardens about town are yielding vegetables—minus the cabbage tribe—in abundance.—The Orange correspondent of the Bathurst Times writes, on the 5th instant: The district was visited with more heavy rain on Sunday, and throughout the night occasional showers fell. To-day it still looked threateningly, a peal of thunder and a smart shower or two came, but towards noon it cleared off. Vegetation luxuriant. Farmers and graziers in high glee. The fruit gardens look well, the show of blossom very heavy, and it has escaped all frost. A large crop of everything may be expected.

NEWCASTLE.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

Public Meeting.—A meeting was held at the Court-house, last evening, for the purpose of presenting J. E. Stacy, Esq., J.P., and Warder of Newcastle, with an address and testimonial, consisting of a very choice and exquisitely worked silver tea-service, prior to his leaving Newcastle. The Court-house was well filled, including a number of ladies. The service was exposed to view on the table, and was much admired. The chairman, his Worship the Mayor, said, the occasion of their meeting there that evening was to show respect to one of long residence among them; one who had proved himself worthy their esteem; one who had shown himself not only willing to co-operate with his purse, but in every laudable object to give his assistance. He did but echo the sentiments of the public of Newcastle when he said he felt sincere regret at Dr. Stacy's leaving, and he felt they would not be fulfilling their duty did they permit such a man as Dr. Stacy to leave them without showing him some esteem for his character and his virtues. Under the circumstances, it had been determined to give Dr. Stacy an address, and also the handsome tea service exhibited there that evening. The chairman then handed the service to Dr. Stacy. In doing so, he would remark that he did so in the name of the subscribers as a token of their heartfelt opinion of his many virtues, and as some slight mark of esteem. He indulged a hope that Dr. Stacy would be long spared to participate in the enjoyment of them. Associated with the piece of plate, it now became his duty to read the address, to perpetuate in some degree the recollection of the 205 subscribers. (Cheers.) The address having been read, Dr. Stacy rose amidst much cheering, and appeared to be deeply affected, said:—"Ladies and gentlemen, the kindly feelings you are pleased to express towards me render it a vain attempt on my part to assure you, in appropriate terms, how deeply sensible I am of your esteem. But if I do not give utterance to my feelings in words sufficiently expressive, I entreat you not to attribute my failure to a deficient sense of your kindness; while I feel most happy in having gained the good opinion and regard of my fellow-citizens. I regret that failing health compels me to quit a scene where I have ceased to be useful—(cries of no, no)—to abandon those duties which I am no longer able to perform efficiently, and to part with so many valuable and sincere friendships which it has been my happy lot to have formed. I accept with deep gratitude your very kind address and splendid testimonial, which will daily recall the many happy years passed among you. I will again now beg of you to accept my best thanks and ardent wishes for the welfare of the city and port of Newcastle, and for your own individual happiness here and hereafter. Ladies and gentlemen, farewell." Three cheers having been given for Dr. Stacy, the meeting separated.

The Colliers' Strike at Mimmi.—Messrs. J. and A. Brown, the proprietors of these mines, sent some since to Melbourne for a number of miners in consequence of the long-continued strike, and as these appeared to be no hope of a speedy settlement. By the the Time and Truth, barque, which arrived yesterday from Melbourne, sixteen men came up for the purpose of working in the mines; but as it was feared some disturbance might take place on the men arriving at their destination, three constables were dispatched to Mimmi for the better preservation of order; as the men were proceeding towards Mimmi in the evening, a number of stones were thrown at them; being dark the aggressor could not be seen. One man was slightly hurt, the rest escaped uninjured. Three other constables were sent up by train this morning, but no further intelligence of interest has yet come to hand.

Yesterday morning a seaman named J. Roberts, belonging to the Amelia Breillat, lying near the Market Wharf, fell from the foretop gallant-yard; it appears the wind blew off his cap, and in endeavouring to recover it, overreached himself and fell on the deck, injuring his head, &c. Captain Morrison immediately procured medical assistance, and the unfortunate man was taken to the hospital, and is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

We have Adelaide journals to the 1st instant.

The Real Property Act.—We have been informed that certain members of the legal profession, just as the Governor was making up his despatches for the late homeward mail, presented him with a memorial to her Majesty in opposition to the Real Property Act, wishing his Excellency to transmit the same in the usual manner. His Excellency is reported to us as having been taken entirely "a-back" by this sudden request; but, notwithstanding, was not put off his guard, and courageously refused to send home a document of the kind which he had no opportunity of studying. Such is the substance of the affair as it has reached us; but we think it of too much importance to be passed over without a word of comment. We are entitled to ask what was the nature of this memorial, and why was it kept a profound secret until the moment the mail boxes were being made up? Why were not the public informed of the contents of a petition purporting (we suppose) to be got up in the interest of the public and on public grounds? Who were the learned gentleman by whom this secret memorial was prepared? What do the legal profession hope or expect to accomplish by this extraordinary mode of procedure? We have entertained the highest respect for the lawyers of South Australia as a body; we have never joined in any disparaging remarks in reference to them or their professional pursuits; we have always desired to see their advice and assistance availed of in the perfecting of the Real Property Act of this colony; but what are they now driving at, and why this mysterious line of action? Let the people of South Australia be on their guard lest they be robbed of their hard-earned privileges. The lawyers are said to be petitioning against the bill; then let the people petition in favour of it. Let town and country unite; let colonists of every rank and grade hold meetings, discuss, memorialise, and send home to her Majesty by the next mail a petition with 10,000 signatures in favour of the Real Property Act, should it be really found that its foes are seeking to undermine it. All classes are interested in this noble work of reform: a noble work, envied and eulogised in all parts of her Majesty's dominions. South Australians will know how to defend their interests against secret plots. We call upon our fellow-colonists for ten thousand signatures!—Advertiser.

Freemasonry among the Natives.—The following letter, and its editorial note, is from the Register: Sir,—In the telegram from Adelaide, published in the Sydney Herald of the 19th October, it is stated that the ferocious natives encountered by Stuart in the Far North, gave him the true Masonic signs. If this is true, how is it we have not heard of it hear? and, secondly, if true, how is it that "the brothers" interrupted Mr. Stuart? B. M. [The information in the Sydney Herald is rather in excess of the truth. All that Mr. Stuart says is that one old man, whom he supposed to be a Malay, gave him a Masonic sign. —Ed.]

Major Warburton's Exploration Tour.—The country to the westward of Fowler's Bay, which the South Australians are so anxious to detach from New South Wales, does not appear to be such a very promising region, if we may judge from the following report to the Colonial Secretary, by Major Warburton, the commissioner of police, who has been sent out to explore it:—"Fowler's Bay, Friday, October 19, 1860. Sir, I regret to report that my first attempt to penetrate the country to the north-west of Fowler's Bay has been a complete failure, and I greatly fear if what I have seen be only a sample of what there is to be seen, it will be utterly impossible to proceed either inland or along the coast at this season. I have had every advantage—cool weather, one wet day, good horses, all fresh and in excellent condition; yet, so far as I can see, it would be a positive and useless act of cruelty to force the horses into such a country, and perfect folly, if nothing more, to take the men into it. I will not attempt at present to enter into all details, but will merely inform you that I left Fowler's Bay on Monday, the 15th, and after three short stages, by a circuitous route through the scrub, favoured by two rock-waters, we reached the sand-hills on the coast (where we were to find water) on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. We had caught a black in the scrub, and he pointed out the spot where we were to dig; we sunk two wells, eight or nine feet deep each, and came to solid rock, no appearance even of water. In addition to the wells, I prospected over the hills, and sunk trial holes in all the likely looking spots till dark; we were sixteen hours at work, and were then obliged by hunger to return to camp. There was very little feed for the horses, and having no water for them, we were compelled to tie them up. I little knew then what sort of a day's work I had before me to get the horses to water here, but I did not dare to spend another day in digging at the sand-hills, as, if unsuccessful, the delay would have cost me either some of the horses, or compelled me to abandon some of their loads. Most fortunately I had given them easy stages, and made them stay and drink up all the rain-water in the rock-holes before I started from Wanganyah (the name of the sand-hills). We were in the saddle by half-past five a.m. Thursday, to go direct to Fowler's Bay—the supposed distance being about twenty miles. It took us fourteen hours of uninterrupted hard work before we unsaddled at Eyre's Well, in Fowler's Bay. How the horses managed to get the packs through the scrub I scarcely knew; at times they fairly uprooted the trees, at others they got fast jammed between them. Nothing but good horses and good packs got us through. The whole distance was a struggle. Had our last two days been hot ones, or had I not made the horses wait till they could drink up the rock-water, we should not have got through our day's work, and some of the horses would most probably have broken their legs. This sort of thing may be done once or at long intervals, but three days running of it would kill the best horse in the world. As yet no harm has been done; we are all well, and the horses only want a couple of days' rest. I have not made up my mind what I shall do, and I shall not finally decide till the horses are ready. I confess myself indisposed to face a second time the journey I performed yesterday, yet I quite believe there is water to be procured at Wanganyah, if I could only keep the horses without danger during the time it might take me to find it. I could not get a black to go with us from here. We, instead of the Sheriff, have got the credit of having hung the native at Streaky Bay, so the blackfellows evince no great desire to cultivate our acquaintance. If I find it impossible to get so far up the coast as to clear some of the scrub, I shall

A steamer's smoke supposed to be the Eagle, was passed on Thursday, at 8 a.m, off the Clarence.

Thane of Fife.—This vessel, to which we alluded in our issue of the 6th as having arrived at, and been despatched from, Bellambi with a full cargo of coals on the same day, has been purchased by Mr. A. Lorking (owner of the Colina) for the coal trade between that port and Sydney, and is commanded by Captain Hughes, so well known and respected in the coasting trade. The first trip of this vessel having been made within three days, gives a fair promise of a profitable result to his new purchase, and tends to further develop our colonial productions.

Pitt-street Church.—A re-union of the members of the church and congregation under the pastoral care of the Rev. W. Cuthbertson was held on Thursday evening. Tea was provided in the schoolroom, and afterwards the large company adjourned to the Church. The object of the meeting was to commemorate the completion of the fourth year of Mr. Cuthbertson's ministry. The Rev. John West was called to the chair, who opened the proceedings by forcibly depicting the nature of Christianity as the Divine life in man. He was followed by the Rev. Messrs. Slatyer and Poore, who, in brief addresses, explained the nature of the Church as a godly fellowship, and the work of the Christian pastor, not in ministry of rites but of truth. Mr. A. Foss then reviewed the history of Congregationalism in this colony, congratulated the church in the privilege of having such a pastor as Mr. Cuthbertson, assured him of their cordial esteem and hearty co-operation, and referred, in terms of affectionate reverence, to their late pastor, the Rev. Dr. Ross. The Rev. S. C. Kent next in behalf of the denomination, spoke of Independency as freedom—not isolation, and testified to the thorough cordiality of feeling prevailing throughout the churches. The Rev. J. Eggleston, President of the Australian Wesleyan Conference, made graceful acknowledgement of the public services rendered by Mr. Cuthbertson. The latter gentleman then responded to the kindly sentiments which had been uttered; with deep emotion he reviewed the period of his ministry in the colony, and expressed his grateful appreciation of the kindness and sympathy of his people. In the course of his address, Mr. C. mentioned how greatly the anticipations which he had formed, before his arrival, of colonial life had been exceeded by the power and enterprise and intelligence which he found to exist in this city. The Rev. J. E. Vetch, of Balmain, briefly addressed the meeting upon the pleasures of Christian intercourse; after which the meeting was concluded by singing and prayer.

Irrigation.—The Hobart Town Mercury intimates that Signor Martelli, an Italian gentleman well acquainted with the system of artificial irrigation in operation in the Lombard provinces, and who has recently had charge of the extensive irrigation works introduced on the estates of Mr. Sydney Ricardo, of Victoria, is about to pay a visit to Tasmania, with a view of examining and reporting upon the facilities it affords for the introduction of the Italian system.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1860.

First of the blessings recorded by our intelligence from England is the return of sunshine.

The "harvest home" is the great gauge and assurance of the national prosperity. Cheap bread, bought from foreign markets, if to make up for the failure of the seasons, represents, notwithstanding, a national loss. When the farmer flourishes every rural town demands largely of the manufacturer, and is able to pay for the produce of the furnace, the forge, and the loom. When the farmer is poor labour is curtailed—the landlord has to wait for his rent. The country storekeeper and artizan feel the loss of the capital destroyed by the hostile seasons: and the pressure of taxation is augmented by the deficiency of consumption: the revenue must be raised, and thus new forms of taxation must be provided. A good harvest expresses a prosperous year.

Garibaldi is the great wonder of his time. Is he a meteor or a star? Will his triumph be as ephemeral as it has been great? In former times his success would have been attributed to some magical fascination. They would have assigned to him, as the Covenanters did to Claverhouse, the security of a charmed life; his horse would have been represented as a metamorphosis of the devil. We suppose we are not in harmony with the age in attributing his daring career to the powers of darkness. Yet we have seen nothing like it in modern times. What must have been the state of Italy, when a man, with borrowed arms and outlawed adherents, by the force of his character, and the moral power of his name, can sweep away monarchies like dust, and open the strong places with scarcely a battle. "I came, I saw, I conquered!" has been the brief story of Garibaldi, as it was some two thousand years ago, that of his Imperial countrymen. Are we to attribute his success to that pusillanimous indifference which is found in a country where despotism has trodden out the last spark of national life, and not rather to the strong sympathy of the body of the people. The news leaves off when some great point is just about reaching its solution. Garibaldi is just at the crisis of his career. The Neapolitan monarchy fallen, the Roman States subdued, what will be the attitude of the Powers? The recall of the French ambassador from Turin, is it another stratagem, or a real change in the feeling of the Emperor towards his Sardinian ally? When ambassadors break off their intercourse there is but one, generally a short, step to war. If Venice be attacked, we cannot doubt that Austria will take the field. England will stand aloof,—to this she has pledged herself. France may stand aloof, at least until the late conquests of Garibaldi are recovered—until the Austrians reach the point where the Treaty of Villafranca left them. Napoleon will not surely suffer Milan to become Austrian, or renounce the indemnities obtained in consideration of the Sardinian annexation. Hitherto Garibaldi has rejected the timid counsels of France and England, and gone on in the belief that nothing will be sufficient that stops short of Italian unity. Some men trust in a destiny; and destiny shapes itself in harmony with their dreams. Napoleon is said to have this faith in common with his uncle: who for twenty years seemed to command events. But "destiny" avenges itself on those who rashly trust it.

We doubt it is not the destiny of the Italian troops to conquer the Austrian army, sustained by the power of Russia. We hope our correspondent exaggerates the republican party in Italy. They would ruin all. We need not enquire whether a republic be the better form of Government, when all things favour its freedom and development, but it would be fatal to the unity which is the life of the Italian cause. Europe would lose all confidence in the Italian insurrection, if it were to take a democratic form. In revolutions, the only refuge from military despotism is a constitutional monarchy.

The fate of the Irish brigade will naturally create some little merriment, yet we have no doubt they will be well used. They will be protected by the ægis of Great Britain, and, probably, will soon find their way back to Ireland, a little less enthusiastic for despotic Government and with a more satisfactory appreciation of the equal administration of Victoria. Every one must admire the prudence which permitted them "to try" a campaign in the "holy war." Had the laws against foreign enlistment been rigorously enforced, we should have had many a scene. The Irish auxiliaries will probably be ready to serve under the British flag, and soon equal that reputation which their countrymen, when well led and well fed, have gained in every field of battle for the last century.

The other fragments of news are very satisfactory. The success in China will restore the salutary dread of European arms. This time, no doubt, there will be secured proper guarantees against the absurd insolence of the Chinese Government, which persist in treating the great nations of the West. "as red and blue barbarians." We have no qualms of conscience except such as arise from examples of oppression in our own colonies. No nation has a right to shut out commerce by cruel or absurd restrictions. China is the inheritance of our common humanity, and a government which, from ignorance or despotism, attempts to withdraw a third of the human race from communication with the rest must be quelched if it cannot be reformed. It is the duty of civilised states to respect the right of the weakest nation, to seek our own wellbeing in its own way, but not to tolerate sanguinary or vexatious interference with the intercourse of the human family—their natural rights which Governments cannot confiscate.

The news from Syria, again, is more assuring: but from a careful perusal of the papers on the subject we fancy the conclusion will be adopted that the Turkish rule is incurably bad, and must be superseded. Their religion is a fanatical hatred, consecrated by the example of the Moslem saints. What can reform a people who consider that to murder their neighbours is a divine mission? Europe will not long tolerate the wen which deforms the face of Europe, but will find some means by which the rule of the Turks may be superseded—a rule alike detestable and effete.

The speech of the Queen and those of the Emperor and his Minister seem both to point to peace. We should gather that an understanding exists between these powers, to the extent of leaving Italy to herself and compelling other nations to stand aloof. This does not, however, justify the idea that either will venture a soldier or a gun to assist Garibaldi should he attack the Austrian forces. The speech of the Emperor in reference to his future policy will be interpreted according as we believe in his truthfulness, or estimate his interest. The relation between the two countries exhibits far less irritation, and justifies the views of those who hold that to be prepared for war is often the best and only guarantee of peace. The Volunteers have done as much as Cobden to postpone, perhaps avert, the struggle for the Imperial crown of the West.

The prorogation of the House is, of course, preliminary to a dissolution. The division did not show such a large majority as to impose upon the Governor the absolute necessity of calling for a resignation. We presume that those who were absent were so from calculation. The greatest speed in completing the elections, particularly in remote districts, would not enable the House to resume for several weeks. If all were agreed, it would no doubt be possible to pass the Estimates sufficiently early to meet the expenditure of 1861. But considering the party conflicts which will immediately ensue, and the means of delay which are in the hands of a minority, we can scarcely expect that any arrangement will save us from another infraction of the Constitution. Why, however, should we trouble ourselves about this. The Constitution is "a rag." It has never had any vitality from its commencement until the present moment!

We have several times pointed out to our readers the remarkable tendency of our Assembly to divide itself into two parties of equal strength. This has been observable from the very commencement. It matters not with what surplus the administration begins, every day weakens the majority, and brings it to an even balance with its antagonist. It then depends upon the accident of a lady's confinement, or a fit of the gout, or the temper of John Tomkins whether the Ministry shall be in a minority or no. We have reached that point, and it would be impossible for any one to say on which side the balance would sway after two or three divisions.

Every reflecting man must regret the present state of affairs. We are going to the country upon a cry which expresses nothing—a wild utterance interpreted in a thousand forms by those who use it. The Ministers have one version—the Opposition another. No one exactly knows what Mr. Robertson means by free selection. No one could gather it from his bill. Still there is something enchanting in the phrase, and we have little doubt that it will powerfully tell in some of the elections.

The real question, however, is shall Mr. Robertson and those of his sort, govern the country? That is the true point to be decided. All other questions are by-play. One cry would do as well as another, provided it came with equal attraction to the public ear. By assenting to a dissolution the Governor has fairly proposed this question to the electors, and we hope there will be no mistake in the reply. It is right for all parties to look precisely where they are going—to ascertain precisely in what shape the new policy will form itself when the House reassembles. Providing the Robertsonian type preponderates, we shall have no doubt a revolution of all existing systems and interests. These will include changes, to some of which we are disposed to assent, and others we deem pernicious. But, nevertheless, it is right that they should be fully stated.

The triumph of these principles will be in the first instance the suppression of the squatting interests as a great and distinct element of colonial prosperity. It is useless to disguise, and it is absurd to deny, that those who are connected in that pursuit hold one opinion respecting it. It is said that the places of the squatters will be occupied by a more numerous class, and that we shall have the same result in production. The production may be equal, this we have no data to determine, but it will certainly be of an altered form. The larger squatters in the countries which open before us beyond our territory will certainly seek an early refuge. They will leave the land, therefore, clear. They will leave it unproductive. The rent will be lost: the public treasury will be impoverished, but we are to have as the result a new species of occupation, and a bold and happy yeomanry!

The success of Mr. Robertson will be the entire occupation of the bench by men of similar sentiments and habits, and he is a man—unless he is belied, as never man was—who does not at all restrain himself, either in the expression of ultra principles, or in his mode of putting them. By this gentleman and his colleagues of the same class, the future magistracy will be apointed throughout the country. We have specimens already in the administration of justice, to which all that is decent and respectable turns with absolute terror.

We shall have too an abolition of the present system of State-aid in all its various forms. This will of course be hailed by some with whose opinions we are disposed generally to concur, but we have no desire to see even a necessary change accomplished without reflection and in a violent manner.

The Upper House of course is doomed under this regime. Mr. Robertson and his colleague Mr. Arnold have both told the country that they think it a nuisance, and that any substitute for it is an absurdity. Their idea is to have one House in which a majority, such as themselves may be able to command, shall domineer over the entire community, and pass by a single vote any measure they think proper. Of course the judicial power, no longer protected by a second Chamber, will tremble at their frown. All that obstructs the will of the man of the hour will thus be at an end.

Such is the system offered for the acceptance of the people. In prospect they have another development—the severance of this colony from the parent state, and the establishment of a republic of which some great man now in full preparation will occupy the supremacy. It will not be a republic like that of the United States, but a republic like those which flourish in South America where one paltry despot has succeeded to another, and where the distraction of factions has made the tenure of office dependant upon intrigue, corruption, and brutality, and expelled every element which could moderate and elevate the people.

It may be that the people of this country wish for such a Government. The British Parliament in its wisdom has left them a choice. The Governor has fairly proposed it for their consideration. We will not do his Excellency the injustice to imagine that he either accompanies his Ministers through all their ultimate policy, or will employ his office to accelerate its adoption, but it is quite clear that the rigorous rules of impartiality will be observed by Sir William Denison, and that, if the people choose to have all that is within the power of the present constitution to secure, they will find no difficulty there.

We do not object to the question being, proposed in all its breadth. All we abhor is the disguise which would conceal under a fictitious issue that which is the real struggle about to be decided. Whether the country shall descend to the lowest depths of democratic demagogism, or whether those who have lodged their fortunes in the country, made by their industry, shall have any further interest or power in the control of public affairs.

We defy any one to deny that this is the issue, however it may be blurred. It will be determined in the ballot box, and from the senseless apathy of all but the partizans of such men as Mr. Robertson, we cannot doubt what will be the verdict.

LAW.

SUPREME COURT.—Friday.

Sittings for the Trial of Causes.

Jury Court.

Before Chief Justice Sir John Dickinson and a Special Jury of twelve.

CAMERON V. HAY.

This case again took up the whole day without concluding. The evidence on both sides, however, has been finished, and all that remains is for counsel on either side to make their speeches, for his Honor to sum up, and for the jury to consider their verdict.

It stands adjourned until Monday.

Banco Court.

Before Mr. Justice Wise and a jury of four.

TOLANO V. NEALE.

The trial of this cause was resumed and concluded. It was an action for breach of contract, wherein the material questions were—1st. Whether Neale had broken his covenant by permitting an entrance to the pit of the Prince of Wales Theatre by any other way than past Tolano's bar. 2nd If such was the case, what amount of damage had Tolano thereby sustained in the form of a diminution of his bar profits?

Mr. Isaacs appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Faucett and Mr. Milford for the defendant.

The defendant had constructed a parquette in front of the pit, which diminished in proportion the extent of accommodation possessed by the latter. This parquette was entered from Castlereagh-street. It had been contended that the covenant to have entrance to the pit exclusively through Tolano's Hotel gave no such right as to the parquette. It had been held by the Court, however, that the covenant embraced the whole of the area known as the pit as it then stood, and consequently that to cut off a portion of it and to make a separate entrance thereto, would be a breach of that covenant. The evidence as to the numbers passing through Tolano's Hotel before and after this alteration, was conflicting, as was also the evidence as to his probable losses by diminution of bar custom. It was during the opera season that this breach occurred, and an argument strongly relied upon for the defence, was that the class of persons frequenting the opera were those who would be far less likely to drink at Tolano's bar than the ordinary frequenters of the theatre. The season lasted six weeks, but the evidence went chiefly to shew that the losses were heaviest during the first two weeks, if there had even beyond that period been any greater resort to the pit than with its diminished space it could accommodate.

The jury found a verdict for plaintiff—damages £31, holding that there had been no damage during the last four weeks.

ROBERTS V. HAYES.

This was an action of ejectment to recover possession of the Red Cow Inn, at Parramatta.

Mr. Stephen appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Windeyer for the defendant.

The premises in question were owned by one Charles Roberts, but had been mortgaged by him to his brother James Roberts, the present plaintiff. Prior to the execution of the mortgage Charles Roberts had granted a lease to defendant, who was the occupant of the inn. The defence set up was a second lease from Charles Roberts, but as this, if genuine, had been executed since the mortgage, it would not be valid without the consent of the plaintiff, as mortgagee. Plaintiff himself was absent. Charles Roberts was put in the box, to prove the genuineness of the second lease (a dirty looking piece of paper), and that his brother had given a verbal consent to it. But his evidence was very confused and indistinct. This document was also impeached upon the ground that certain antecedents of the defendant himself were such as to cast an additional cloud upon the transaction.

The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff.

His Honor expressed his perfect concurrence in this verdict, and not only granted execution for Monday next, but directed the document relied upon as a second lease to be impounded.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

Friday.

Before the Mayor and the Police Magistrate, with Messrs. E. S. Hill, J. Hoy, and Campbell.

Nine persons were fined for drunkenness—four 20s. and five 10s. each, and one old offender was sentenced to be imprisoned three calendar months, as an idle and disorderly person within the meaning of the Vagrant Act.

Mary Ann Tatam, Joseph Clarke, and John Harkham, were each sentenced to three months' imprisonment and hard labour for vagrancy.

William Sanders, for having assaulted sergeant Duffy, who apprehended him for making use of obscene language, by knocking him down, was ordered to pay £5, or to be imprisoned fourteen days; and William Langdon, for obstructing a constable in the execution of his duty, was fined 1s., or in default of payment to be confined until the rising of the Court.

Jane Higgs was found guilty of having wilfully damaged a silk dress piece, the property of David Jones and Co. It appeared that, on Wednesday, the defendant was drunk on Church-hill, and abusing all that passed her; a lad in the employ of Messrs. Jones and Co. having to pass that way, stopped to listen, if not to learn; she ordered him to go about his business, but he did not instantly depart; she ran to him, snatched the parcel (containing the silk) from under his arm, and, using it as a weapon, beat him therewith; he went away for a constable, and on his return found her kicking the silk through the mud. She was given into custody for stealing, and was yesterday brought before the Bench, who thought that she did not take the silk with intent to steal it, and therefore discharged her, but recommended that she be given into custody for a wilful destruction of the property. Hence her appearance this morning. Their worships found her guilty of having wilfully destroyed the silk, and ordered her to pay the amount or to be imprisoned one month.

James Parker, a seller of potatoes by retail, pleaded guilty to an information by Inspector Mitchelson, for having in use at his stall, at the Haymarket, on Saturday night, an unjust weighing machine, the pan of which was 1½ ounces against the customer. The Bench fined him 10s.!

Robert Gwymer was charged by his master, Mr. B. C. Rodd, with misconduct in his hired service—on the 13th ultimo he absented himself without leave, returning next day. To pay a fine of 11s., with 7s. 2d. costs, or to be imprisoned seven days.

Jeremiah Skinner was fined 10s. on conviction of an assault committed upon Margaret Jones.

WATER POLICE COURT.

Friday.

Before the Water Police Magistrate and Lieutenant Sadleir.

John Ward and John West, who had been found drunk in the streets, were fined 20s each, with the alternative of twenty-four hours' imprisonment.

Thomas Maynard, master of the ship Rock City, was charged on the information of Thomas Allan, seaman, with having used threatening language towards him. The case having been dismissed, and the parties having left the Court, Allan stopped and told the third mate, who was with him, that he wanted to speak to the captain. It appeared that when the captain came up, Allan addressed him in an improper manner, then picked up two large stones, with one of which he struck the captain between the shoulders. For this assault Allan was sentenced to three months' hard labour in gaol.

Joseph Silverwood, a seaman, who had deserted from the Acelicia, was sentenced to four weeks' hard labour in gaol.

In the matter of an application for maintenance for wife and children, the Court made a fresh order, reducing the amount to £2 a week for twelve months.

PROCLAMATION.

ITALY.

Garibaldi entered Naples on the 7th September, accompanied only by a few officers of his staff. His reception was most enthusiastic. On the evening of the 6th September the King fled to Gaeta, and went on board a steamer. The Adriatic provinces at once broke out into open insurrection, and sent a deputation to the King of Sardinia to ask for succour and protection. Not waiting for an answer to an ultimatum, which he hnd despatched to the Papal Government, recommending the dismissal of the mercenaries under Lamoriciere, Garibaldi sent a force of 50,000 men across the frontier into the states of the Church. They took Pesaro, Fario, and Urbino, and established their head-quarters at Sinigaglia. On the 18th September, General Lamoriciere was defeated at Castel Fidardo, and fled to Ancona, which was invested by the Sardinians both by land and sea. Six hundred men, comprising the Pope's Irish Brigade, have been taken at Spoleto as prisoners by the Sardinians, and all the troops of the Pope have been distributed (dispersed?) with the exception of the garrison of Ancona. Garibaldi declared by proclamation his determination to proceed to Rome and from thence to march on to Venice at all risks. The differences between Garibaldi and Count Cavour are said to have been widened by recent events and the desperate course proposed by the Dictator.

The King of Naples maintains his position at Gaeta, with a large army: he has formed his Government, and is prepared to resist. 15,000 Garibaldians are before Capua, but they have met with a repulse and the loss of 200 men. A decisive attack is threatened, and the communication of the royal troops between Capua and Gaeta is interrupted. It is expected the Neapolitans will surrender: the promptitude with which Garibaldi made provision for the maintenance of the Executive, saved Naples from anarchy. The functions of the Government were not suspended for an hour. As soon as the Provisional Government was formed, orders were issued for the transfer of the Neapolitan fleet to the Sardinian Admirals, and the disembarkation of the Sardinian troops.

These directions having been carried out, practically incorporated Naples with Piedmont.

The French ambassador at Turin has been recalled, and the Sardinian ambassador has quitted his post at Paris.

The Turkish authorities are manifesting a determination to put down the fanatical revolutions against the Christians, and several executions of the superior officers have taken place.

A treaty of alliance of a defensive character has been entered into between Belgium and Poland.

The rumour that Austria and Russia have entered into an alliance is confirmed; the Emperor of Russia and Austria, and the Prince Regent of Prussia, had agreed to meet at Warsaw on the 13th of October.

Switzerland has again appealed to Europe to adjust her new relations with France, the latter power refusing to accede to her proposal for fortifying the Simplon, and forming a frontier at the Lake of Genoa.

The Emperor Napoleon has made a public speech at Marseilles in the interests of peace. Mazzini and Kossuth have been staying for some time in Northern Italy, and are about to join the Dictator.

The Ultramontane party in France are desirous that the Pope should quit Rome.

One of the decrees issued by Garibaldi at Naples abolishes the order of the Jesuits throughout the kingdom.

It is reported that M. Thouvenal will be replaced as Foreign Minister of France by Count Persigny.

The Republican party at Naples is gaining strength.

All the foreign Ambassadors except the English, have left Naples.

The Viennian Question is about to be settled by the intervention of England and France.

CHINA.

The latest intelligence from the Peiho is to the effect that the Taku Forts have been taken by the Allies, with fearful loss to the Chinese.

Lord Elgin and Baron Gros arrived at Tien Tsin on the 25th August; Commissioners from Pekin arrived on the 28th. Negociations proceeded satisfactorily for a week, when the Chinese Commissioners all at once intimated that they had no power to sign a treaty. Further communications were then stopped, and the army put in motion for Pekin.

The trade at Shanghai remains paralysed.

The half yearly dividend of the Bank of Australasia was declared at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum.

WOOL REPORT.

Since the close of the last sales more firmness has been manifested in the market; the improved weather for harvest operations having restored confidence. The sales finished on the 30th of August. There was a little inquiry for France, but few sales made.

PROROGATION OF PARLIAMENT.

The Lord Chancellor read the following most gracious Royal Speech:—

My Lords and Gentlemen,—We are commanded by her Majesty to release you from further attendance in Parliament, and at the same time to convey to you her Majesty's acknowledgments for the zeal and assiduity with which you have applied yourselves to the performance of your important duties during the laborious session of Parliament now about to close. Her Majesty commands us to inform you that her relations with foreign Powers are friendly and satisfactory, and her Majesty trusts that there is no danger of any interruption of the general peace of Europe, Events of considerable importance are indeed taking place in Italy: but if no Foreign Powers interfere therein, and if the Italians are left to settle their own affairs, the tranquillity of other States will remain undisturbed. The proposed conference on the subject of the cessation of Savoy and of Nice to France has not yet been settled, but her Majesty confidently trusts that in any negotiations which may take place, full and adequate arrangements will be made for securing, in accordance with the spirit and the letters of the treaty of the Conference of Vienna of 1815, the neutrality and independence of the Swiss Confederation. That neutrality and independence were an object to which all the Powers who were parties to the treaties of Vienna attached great importance: and they are not less important now than then, for the general interests of Europe. Her Majesty commands us to assure you, that the atrocities which have been committed on the Christian population in Syria have inspired her Majesty with the deepest grief and indignation. Her Majesty has cheerfully concurred with the Emperor of Austria and the Emperor of the French, the Prince Regent of Prussia, and the Emperor of Russia, in entering into an engagement with the Sultan, by which temporary military assistance has been afforded to the Sultan for the purpose of re-establishing order in that part of his dominions. We are commanded by her Majesty to inform you that her Majesty greatly regrets that the pacific overtures which by her Majesty's directions her envoy in China made to the Imperial Government at Pekin did not lead to any satisfactory result, and it has therefore been necessary that the combined naval and military forces which her Majesty and her ally the Emperor of the French had sent to the Chinese seas should advance towards the northern provinces of China, for the purpose of supporting a just demand of the Allied Powers. Her Majesty, desirous of giving all possible weight to her diplomatic agents in this matter, has sent to China a special ambassador for this service, the Earl of Elgin, who negotiated the treaty of Tein Tsin, the full and faithful execution of which is demanded of the Emperor of China.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,—Her Majesty commands us to convey to you her warm acknowledgments for the liberal supplies which you have granted for the service of the present year, and for the provision which you have made for the defences which are essential for the security of her dominions and arsenals.

My Lords and Gentlemen,—Her Majesty commands us to express to you the gratification and pride with which she has witnessed the rapid progress in military efficiency which her Volunteer forces have already made, and which is highly honourable to their spirit and patriotism. Her Majesty has given her cordial assent to the Act for the amalgamation of her local European force in India with her forces engaged for general service. Her Majesty trusts that the additional freedom which you have given to commerce will lead to fresh developments of productive industry. Her Majesty has given her ready assent to several measures of great public usefulness. The Act for regulating the relations between landlord and tenant in Ireland, her Majesty trusts, will remove some fertile causes of disagreement. The Act for amending the law which regulates the discipline of her Majesty's navy established salutary rules for administration of justice by court martial for maintaining good order in the naval service. The Act bearing upon endowed charities will give means for less expensive administration of the property of charities, and for the speedy and economical settlement of disputes affecting such property; while, by another Act, relief has been afforded her Majesty's Roman Catholic subjects with regard to their charitable endowments. Several other Acts have been passed for legal reform, which must lead to the more satisfactory administration of justice. Her Majesty has observed, with deep satisfaction, the spirit of loyalty, of order, and of obedience to the law which prevails among her subjects in the United Kingdom, and in her dominions beyond the seas. Her Majesty has witnessed with heartfelt pleasure the warm and affectionate reception given H.R.H. the Prince of Wales by her North American subjects. You will, on returning to your several counties, have duties to perform scarcely less important than those which occupied you during the session of Parliament; and her Majesty fervently prays that the blessing of Almighty God may attend your efforts, and guide them to the attainment of the objects of her constant solicitude, the welfare and happiness of her people.

The Queen's writ for the prorogation of Parliament was then read, by which Parliament stands prorogued till Tuesday, the 6th November next. The Lord Chancellor then announced that Parliament was accordingly prorogued until the 6th November.

THE FRENCH EMPEROR'S SPEECH.

The following remarkable speech was pronounced by the Emperor at a banquet given in his honour by the Marseilles Chamber of Commerce, before his journey to Algiers:—

GENTLEMEN,—The banquet offered by the Chamber of Commerce gives me the opportunity of publicly thanking the city of Marseilles for the warm reception it has given to the Empress and myself. The unanimous demonstration of attachment which we have received since our journey touched me deeply, but does not make me proud, for my only aim has been to have full faith in Divine Providence, as well as in the patriotism and good sense of the French people. It is this intimate union between people and sovereign which constitutes our strength at home as well as abroad, and which has enabled us, notwithstanding great difficulties never to pause in our progressive march. This desire for what is good; this enthusiasm for all that is noble and useful, cannot abate now when circumstances are more favourable and tranquillity is the wish of all the world. If anxious rumours should reach us from afar, let us not be disturbed on that account. They will break against our indifference, like the wave of the ocean on our shores. Let us labour, then, with all our strength to develope the resources of our country. The work of peace has in my eyes a crown as beautiful as that of laurel. In a future of prosperity and greatness which I contemplate for France, Marseilles naturally holds a large place from its energies and the intelligence of its inhabitants, as well as from its geographical position close to the military fort of Toulon. It appears to me to represent on its shores the genius of France, holding an olive branch in one hand but feeling its sword at its side. Let her reign in peace on that sea, the Phœnician city, by the calm influence of commerce; let her civilise barbarous nations, by increased traffic; let her draw closer the bonds of civilised nations; let her induce the people of Europe to come and shake hands on the poetical shores of this sea; and sink in the depths of its waters the jealous faults of her past age. Finally, let Marseilles always show herself beautiful, as I now behold her—that is to say, in keeping with the destinies of France—and one of my most ardent wishes will be accomplished. I drink the health of the city of Marseilles."

COUNT PERSIGNY ON IMPERIAL POLICY.

The Count Persigny (as president) opened on the 28th August the sittings of the General Council in the department of the Loire, in a speech, of which the following is a summary:—

The Count commenced by observing that he was about to examine the existing probabilities of peace being maintained in Europe, and said the Emperor's programme of Bordeaux has not been changed. Without pretending to abolish war, the Emperor has, however, repudiated the inheritance of fighting for vengeance for the defeats of the first Emperor. Before the inauguration of the present Emperor, two extraordinary questions were pending, viz., the question of the East and Italy, neither of which could be resolved by means of diplomacy. After the wars resulting from those questions could not be avoided, they were carried out with promptitude, and the Emperor succeeded in realizing the object for which they were undertaken. The destruction of Sebastopol prevented Russia from taking Constantinople, and the Eastern question was committed to the charge of United Europe. As regards the war in Italy, the Italian States were delivered from Austrian dominion and the principal object of the war was thus attained, although the Italians now jeopardized the independence which they acquired in consequence of the war. The principle of non-interference, now a recognised rule of international policy, exercises a dominating influence over the further development of the question. These are the only questions which occupy the attention of Europe at the present moment. The apprehensions entertained in Germany respecting the Rhine frontier, and the fears of invasion in England, do not merit serious discussion. The Rhine is no longer a strategetic frontier. France being much stronger when Germany is divided, will never support the project of German unity for any compensation she might obtain. Concerning the relations between England and France, neither of these two powers desire to enter upon such a horrible struggle as a war between them would be. The English nation is peaceable, their virtuous Queen, and the eminent men in power desire to maintain a good understanding between the two nations. In view of so many great results obtained by France, and the lustre which they throw around the French name, it is natural that uneasiness and distrust should have arisen in Europe. France, however, did not create the complications in Italy, neither did she counsel Austria to follow the fatal policy which led to the rising of the Italians. Nor is she responsible for the treaties which Austria concluded with the Italian princes.

France used every possible effort to prevent the conflict. The Emperor has kept silent. Before the outbreak of the war, in reference to his promises to repulse the attacks of Austria upon Italy, it was with the motive of leaving the Italians in ignorance of his power, which, had they been aware of, would have forced increased excitement amongst them.

Thus the silence with which the Emperor has been reproached was disadvantageous to himself alone, and the same can be said in reference to the cession of Savoy and Nice to France, after the peace of Villafranca treaty. On the other side of the Alps France would not renounce her Alpine frontiers, seeing that a great Italian kingdom had been constituted. France has never concealed her intentions either from Sardinia or England. She has deceived nobody. The Emperor of the French has certainly replaced France in her legitimate position, without shaking the confidence of Europe. Taking it as a whole, his policy was pure and honest. If he has made war in Italy it was only because the other Powers were not willing to engage their own responsibility. As soon as it was possible to arrive at a definite result, he concluded the peace desired by the world. Since 1815 France has been forced to follow the role imposed upon her by the Treaty of Vienna; another spirit now reigns, and the political system of 1815 has been subverted by Europe herself. The system was the result of a violent transition, in which two great convulsions entirely disturbed the European equalisation. Since then it has been in the great interests of Europe, that general reconciliation should be effected between the different powers, and that France should by common consent reassume the position which belonged to her in the Council of the Powers. She no longer threatens nor is threatened. Her work is achieved. The mission of the new Empire is accomplished. The military role of France in Europe is at an end. It affords me great happiness to be conscientiously able to say an era of peace and prosperity is now opening for Europe.

COMMERCIAL SHIPMENTS.

TO MELBOURNE AND GEELONG, from 9th August to 8th September, amount to £369,616, against £575,667 in last month. Decrease £206,051. This satisfactory decrease is mainly caused by considerable reductions in shipments of all kinds of drapery goods, apparel, and leather. In cheese, butter, and malt there is a decline. Bacon about the same. Currants and raisins are heavy. All spirits except geneva are below the average.

The Telegraph has cleared from Rotterdam, for Melbourne, with 4200 red and 2000 green cases; the Dolphin, for Sydney, lies windbound, with 5240 red cases. These two shipments bring the exports of geneva from Holland, to all the Australian colonies, during the first nine months of the year, up to 157,116 proof gallons. The Amy Schaaffer is loading at Rotterdam, and sails at the end of October.

The third series of colonial Wool Sales, which commenced 9th July, terminated on 30th August. Notwithstanding the inclement state of the weather, which has greatly interfered with the sale of spring and summer goods, a good business had been done in the interim since May and June sales in most of the wool consuming districts, and, consequently, this series opened with a good attendance of buyers, and brisk competition for all Australian descriptions, except those in grease, at fully last sales rates. Towards the close of the sales fears were entertained for the safety of the harvest, owing to a continuance of wet weather, caused a reduction of price, in all but first-rate qualities somewhat during the last two or three days of the sale. The quantity taken for export amounts to 25,000 bales, chiefly of combing description.

WAVERLEY MUNICIPALITY.—The usual weekly meeting of this council was held in the Council Chambers, on Tuesday. Present—the Chairman; Councillors Birrell, Smith, St. Julian, Simmons, Joseph Vickery. The minutes of the proceedings of last meeting read and confirmed. Correspondence—Read a letter from R. Massie, Esq., forwarding balance of subscriptions received towards making a road down to the ocean, and one to join the Waverley and Randwick boundaries, making total amount received £50 10s. Reports—The chairman of the finance committee brought up and moved the adoption of a report recommending that sundry accounts amounting to £18 19s. 10d. be paid. Report adopted. The chairman of municipality informed the council that in consequence of the bailiff neglecting to find the necessary security required by the by-laws, he had suspended him from his office, and requested the sanction of the council to supersede him by appointing Mr. S. Sweeney in his stead. In reference thereto it was moved by councillor Birrell, and resolved—That this council confirms the appointment of the chairman of Mr. S. Sweeney to the office of bailiff to this municipality, in the place of Mr. Chapman, suspended, and that this Council also guarantees the bailiff the ordinary fees. The chairman laid upon the table the returns called for at a previous meeting, shewing the total receipts and expenditure in and for the several wards, or divisions now constituting such wards, from the commencement of the municipality to the present date. The Council clerk received instructions to give notice to two persons in occupation of premises situate within the municipality, and used as a boiling-down establishment, to abate the nuisance arising therefrom, and in the event of non-compliance with this request, proceedings to be instituted forthwith. The surveyor reported to the Council that, since the last meeting, the fines imposed upon councillors for non-attendance at "call of Council," had been paid, whereupon councillor St. Julian asked for and obtained permission to withdraw a notice of motion standing on the business paper, having for the object the enforcement of payment of such fines forthwith. This terminated the proceedings, and the Council then rose.

NEW ZEALAND STEAM POSTAL SERVICE.

(From the New Zealander, October 20.)

A SPECIAL General Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held in the Hall of the Mechanic's Institute on Wednesday, at 2 o'clock, the representatives of the Province of Auckland in the General Assembly having been invited to attend.

The Chairman, Mr. J. A. Gilfillan, having opened the business of the meeting, Mr. Harris brought forward the report of the Committee, which was received and read.

Mr. Firth then addressed the meeting at some length, stating that as the direct steamer between Auckland and Sydney was about to be withdrawn, and as a large subsidy was paid for which Auckland derived but a secondary advantage, it was desirable, if possible, to avert such a catastrophe. After one or two modifications, and emendations, Mr. Firth concluded by moving the following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. Jerris, and carried, after having been discussed at great length, the manifest object of almost every one present being to have the Sydney Postal route maintained—the insurmountable obstacle which the Representative members adduced being the financial state of the question, and the fetters imposed by the original contract with the Steam Company. The first resolution was to this effect:—"That it is the opinion of this meeting of the members of the Auckland Chamber of Commerce, that any alteration in the present steam service, which would result in the withdrawal of the steamer running direct between Sydney and Auckland, would be highly detrimental to the political interests of the Colony, and the commercial and postal interests of this Province, and they respectfully, but earnestly, urge the hon. members of the House of Representatives for the Province of Auckland the necessity of having the recent vote in Committee of the House on this subject re-considered with a view of retaining the present direct monthly steam communication with Sydney."

The second resolution was moved by Mr. Harris, as follows—"That a copy of the above resolution be transmitted to the hon. the Colonial Secretary, and the members of the General Assembly for the Province of Auckland."

Mr. Ridings seconded the resolution, which was carried unanimously, and the meeting separated.

MR. FARQUHARSON'S SOIREE MUSICALE.—The musical entertainment given by Mr. Farquharson at the Australian Library, Bent-street, yesterday evening, was highly successful. The hall and galleries were well filled by a fashionable audience, who one and all seemed greatly to enjoy the treat set before them by the talented basso. The programme consisted chiefly of ballads and descriptive songs, of which "The Maniac," and "Man the Life Boat," elicited the most vociferous encores. Dibdin's patriotic song of the "Tight Little Island" was loudly applauded, and judging from the enthusiasm it excited, it would seem that the Britons of to-day are not a whit behind their forefathers—for whom Dibdin wrote, and whose ballads contributed not a little to the advancement of the national glory of Old England. The English buffo song "Travellers all," from Balfe's Siege of Rochelle, was admirably given, and encored,—and by way of contrast, Mr. Farquharson sang the celebrated buffo aria "Figaro," from Rossini's Il Barbiere. "The Battle of Inkermann," in the first part, was delivered in a true martial spirit. The plaintive and touching ballad, "The Old Arm Chair," which Henry Russell has rendered so popular, was given with much pathos and feeling. The concert terminated with the scena "Whyttington and his Catte," a comic romance, by Albert Smith, the music by John Parry, the accompaniment to which is extremely pretty. Before singing the last song on the programme, Mr. Farquharson thanked the audience for their attendance, and expressed a hope that he would have the pleasure of meeting them again shortly. One excellent feature in the musical entertainment of yesterday evening was the anecdotes by which many of the pieces were prefaced, and which elucidates the "burden of the song"—one of the best being that which introduces "Ruddier than the Cherry;" the love-song of Polyphemus. There is little doubt that these soirées will be well supported by the lovers of music in Sydney, and this evening the denizens of Balmain are to be visited by Mr. Farquharson, when we trust "our friends over the water" will give him a substantial welcome.

CORONER'S INQUEST.—The city coroner held an inquest at the Observer Tavern, George-street North, yesterday, on the body of a man named James Willway, aged twenty-nine years. It appeared, from the evidence, and from letters found in the deceased's pockets, that he was a native of Bristol, and had recently arrived in Melbourne from England. He appears to have gone on board the ship in moderately good health, but on the passage out he, with the other passengers, was compelled to drink water impregnated with salt, and to this he and the other passengers attributed severe sickness which succeeded. In Melbourne he suffered from a harassing cough, copious expectoration, and diarrhœa. In this state he was, on Saturday last, assisted by two gentlemen, one named M'Kenzie, on board the schooner Mimmie Dyke, in which he had taken passage to Sydney for the benefit of his health. The vessel sailed on Monday, and arrived here on Thursday evening. He was not sea-sick on the passage up, but his illness increased, and he expired between two and three o'clock on Thursday afternoon, the vessel being then off the Heads. The jury returned a verdict of died from natural causes; and, in a rider, expressed a belief that he was not, on Saturday last, in a fit state to undertake a sea voyage, but that he had received every attention on board the Mimmie Dyke.

SOMETHING LIKE SPORT.—A Californian newspaper (the Golden Era) relates the following laughable sporting event, viz., a bull race, for the truth of which it vouches. It says:—Many years ago, the members of a race course near Brownsville, on the Monongahela, published notice of a race, one mile heats, on a particular day, for a purse of 100 dollars, "free for anything with four legs and hair on." A man in the neighbourhood named Hays had a bull that he was in the habit of riding to mill with his bag of corn, and he determined to enter him for the race. He said nothing about it to any one, but he rode him around the track a number of times, on several moonlight nights, until the bull had the hang of the ground pretty well, and would keep the right course. He rode with spurs, which the bull considered particularly disagreeable; so much so that he always bellowed when they were applied to his sides. On the morning of the race, Hays came upon the ground on horseback on his bull. Instead of a saddle, he had dried an oxhide, the head part of which, with the horns still on, he had placed on the bull's rump. He carried a short tin horn in his hand. He rose to the judge's stand and offered to enter his bull for the race; but the owners of the horses objected. Hayes appealed to the terms of the notice, insisting that his bull had "four legs and hair on," and that therefore he had a right to enter him. After a good deal of swearing the judges declared themselves compelled to decide that the bull had the right to run, and was entered accordingly. When the time for starting arrived, the bull and the horses took their places. The horse-racers were out of humour at being bothered with the bull, and at the burlesque which they supposed was intended, but thought that it would be over as soon as the horses started. When the signal was given, they did start. Hays gave a blast with his horn, and sunk his spurs into the side of the bull, who bounded off with a terrible bawl at no trifling speed, the dried oxhide flapping up and down, and rattling at every jump, making a combination of noises that had never been heard on a racecourse before. The horses all flew the track, every one seeming to be seized with a sudden determination to take the shortest cut to get out of the Redstone country, and none of them could be brought back in time to save their distance. The purse was given to Hays. A general row ensued, but the fun of the thing put the crowd all on the side of the bull. The horsemen contended that they were swindled out of the purse, and if it had not been for Hay's horn and oxide, which he ought not to have been permitted to bring upon the ground, the thing would not have turned out as it did. Upon this Hays told them that this bull could beat any of their horses anyhow, and if they would put 100 dollars against the purse he had won he would take off the oxhide and leave the tin horn, and run a fair race with them. His offer was accepted and the money staked. They again took their places at the starting post, Hays gave the bull another touch with his spur, and the bull gave a tremendous bellow. The horses went away again, and Hays galloped his bull around the track again and won the money.

RELIGIOUS TRACT AND BOOK SOCIETY.

THE annual meeting of the New South Wales Religious Tract and Book Society, was held yesterday evening in the Temperance Hall, Pitt-street.

Shortly after seven o'clock the chair was taken by the Hon. G. Allen, Esq., M.L.C. There were then present about thirty ladies and gentlemen, but as the evening advanced the assembly increased, and about half the seats were occupied. There were on the platform the Rev. W. Cuthbertson, B.A., the Very Reverend the Dean of Sydney, the Rev. S. C. Kent, the Rev. J. L. Poore (of Melbourne), the Rev. W. Leasham, the Hon. J. Alexander, Esq., M.L.C., the Hon. G. W. Allen, Esq., M.L.C., Mr. J. Campbell, M.L.A., Mr. A. Foss, and several other gentlemen.

The business of the meeting was commenced by the Rev. S. C. Kent, who read the 19th Psalm and offered up a prayer.

Mr. A. Foss then read the following report :—

REPORT.

The committee of the New South Wales Religious Tract and Book Society beg respectfully to submit to this meeting their thirty-eighth annual report.

During the year their issues have been :—Books, 28,695; tracts, 46,673; hand bills, 14,094; making a total of 89,850. Publications in each one of which the great and cardinal doctrines of Christianity are distinctly stated, and the plan of salvation through the vicarious sacrifice of the Redeemer is clearly set forth.

Free grants have been made for gratuitous distribution of 9973 publications—those your committee rejoice to know have not been circulated altogether in vain.

One of our most active and indefatigable tract distributors has furnished us with a report of his labours, containing information of a very encouraging and stimulating character. He mentioned the case of a man who, in the course of his career, had visited many parts of the world, leading a careless and wicked life, and trying hard to be an infidel. At the house of this man a tract was left, which led him to a consciousness of his state as a sinner, and indeed him to seek peace with God, through that blood which cleanseth from all sin. He has since removed from Sydney into the country, and it is believed that he is now a member of a Christian church.

A soldier, to whom this distributor had on a previous occasion given a tract, accosted him in the Park, and spoke to him of the beneficial effect which it had had upon his mind, and many persons during the year have gratefully acknowledged their obligations to the publications of our Society. A man and his wife, who had long been living neglectful of their souls, and in total disregard of the Sabbath and of the ordinances of public worship, were awakened by reading the tracts which were left at their house, and were indeed to seek further instruction and light; they became regular attendants in the house of God, and found peace and joy in believing. When they removed from Sydney into the Western district of this colony they stated that it was their intention, wherever they might reside, publicly to identify themselves with the people of God.

Other instances of positive usefulness resulting from the books, tracts, and tracklits issued from our depot, might be mentioned. But your committee hesitate to present some of those cases which from time to time come to their knowledge, in a limited and sparse population like that of this land, where those of whom they would have to speak could easily be identified.

While we cannot report so large a circulation as has been attained in some previous years, we yet rejoice to know that God has not left the seed we have scattered unwatered by His blessing, and unquickened by the sunshine of His favour.

It has, too, been gratifying to learn that books and tracts of other kindred societies have been largely circulated by the members of various Christian churches; and also that the number of publications issued from our depot does not comprehend the entire circulation of the works of the London and New York Tract Societies in this colony, inasmuch as several of our booksellers and others obtain their supplies from England or America, independently of this institution.

Our financial condition is far from satisfactory. Your committee have been hindered, hampered, and disquieted by a cumbrous debt, amounting at the present time to about £1700, and while they have a heavy stock on hand, of some portion of which it will be found difficult, if not impossible to suppose, unless it can be mixed with a constant supply of more recent and attractive publications, they have hesitated to make out such lists as they would have liked to have sent from mail to mail, because of the impossibility of regularly and fully meeting their liabilities. They would earnestly press upon this assembly, and upon the Christian public generally, the importance of speedily removing the debt which presses them down, and so sadly impedes the usefulness of your Society. Notwithstanding the commercial depression which prevails, they have trust that an early and vigorous effort will be made to liquidate the existing debt.

We have to report the resignation of our joint secretaries, Messrs. Adam and Foss, who, through the pressure of other engagements, find it impossible to give to the affairs of this Society that attention which, under present circumstances, they so much need. We feel sure you will unite with us in expressions of gratitude to these gentlemen for their past voluntary, disinterested, and laborious services. Mr. Foss has consented to retain his office for a few weeks, at the expiration of which your committee have reason to expect that they will be able to secure the services of an efficient clerical Secretary. Mr. Henry Lane has consented to allow himself to be nominated as one of our secretaries for the ensuing year.

The treasurer has remitted on purchase account, one thousand pounds (£1000).

Your committee recommend that the following be added to the rules of this Society, viz. :—

"That every Minister of the Gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, who is a member of this Society, shall be entitled to attend and vote at all meetings of the committee."

During the year the Religious Tract Society in England has issued 245 new tracts; nineteen volumes have also been published, including the completed annotated paragraph Bible. The total issues of the society proceeded from the press during the past year, by 4,537,360, and amounted to 41,710,208; of these 483,377 were foreign issues. Books and tracts amounting in value to £18,368 18s. 8d., in addition to those which have been sold have been distributed in various parts of the world. The committee would urge upon those who hear this report, and upon all into whose hands it may hereafter come, the importance of circulating its publications. Let them be given seriously, prayerfully, and in faith; and as hitherto they have, under the blessing of God, been the means of the conversion of thousands of souls, so there is reason to hope that such distribution will result in the conversion of thousands more.

The following statement made by the chairman of the last annual meeting in London is so eminently calculated to infuse hope and stimulate exertion in this good work that we venture to submit it to your notice :—"A lady had a brother in the army, who was not a religious man; he had been a subject of many prayers and many tears, and at last, on his going out on foreign service, his sister put a few little tracts into his trunk. She placed them there with much affection, and also with much prayer. The result was that, in the moment, that officer took up these tracts, and, recollecting his sister and all her goodness, he read them, and came to a knowledge of himself and of his God. He saw his own wretched state; he saw his need of a Saviour, and he knew no peace until he found that Saviour."

"Cast thy bread upon the waters, for thou shalt find it after many days."

"In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand, for thou knowest not whether shall prosper—either this or that,—or whether they both shall be alike good."

The Hon. G. W. ALLEN, Esq., M.L.C., read the balance sheet of the year, which showed that the expenditure had been £2249 4s. 10d. (about double the amount of the receipts), and that there was a balance due to the Joint Stock Bank of £941 13s. 7d.

The Rev. W. M. COWPER (Dean of Sydney) moved the first resolution :—"That the report now read, with the treasurer's accounts, be adopted and printed. That the Hon. G. W. Allen be treasurer, and Messrs. Ambrose Foss and Henry Lane, the joint secretaries; and that the following gentlemen be the lay members of the committee for the ensuing year, viz., Hon. John Alexander, M.L.C., Dr. Moffat, Professor Smith, M.D., Captain Martindale, R.N., Dr. Moon, Messrs. D. Jones, S. Adam, G. W. Cameron, John Campbell, M.P., John Caldwell, John Fairfax, Thomas Hogg, A. M'Arthur, M.P., M. H. Stephen, Henry Lane, Ambrose Foss, and Mr. Love." Before he said anything with reference to the resolution itself, he thought it would be both interesting and encouraging to the meeting to refer for a moment to the origin of this society. He was present when, in the year 1823, it was formed, at the suggestion of the late Sir Thomas Brisbane, after a meeting of the Auxiliary Bible Society. It appeared, however, that a few months previous to the suggestion to form this Tract Society in Sydney, the Religious Tract Society in London had had their attention drawn to this colony, and to its spiritual wants, and within thirty days after the organisation of the Society, a clergyman (the Rev. Richard Hill) received a letter containing an invoice of certain of the Tract Society's books. They were commended to him in the hope that something might be done towards the extension of the Society's operations in this colony. So that within thirty days after the establishment of the society in this colony, and ten months, perhaps, before supplies of books and tracts could have been otherwise obtained from England, it was in a position to commence its operations. It was also an interesting fact that the first amount which was sent to the society in England was £10; last year it appeared that that amount was doubled a hundred times, the sum sent home being £1000. It was well to look back to the origin of the society, in order to see how graciously God in his providence had dealt with it. It was gratifying to find that so large a number of publications had issued from the depôt during the past year, because, although only a few instances were known to the committee of the benefits derived from the issue of those publications, it was impossible to say what might be the effect produced by the tens of thousands of religious tracts and other books which had been circulated by the society throughout different parts of the colony. The operations of institutions like this were of a silent and unobtrusive nature. They did not make a great noise; but it was not always the greatest noise which produced the greatest effect. These operations of nature which were stillest, were most efficacious and productive of the most lasting and beautiful results. The dawn of day was an illustration of this. How gradually and beautifully it commenced, and how silently the light proceeded from the first break in the horizon until the rising of the sun! It was often so with the light of divine truth; when it began first to dawn upon the human mind. Gradually the darkness was dispelled, and, by degrees, glorious day was produced in the soul. Therefore, looking forward to what might be the future results of the seeds sown during the past year, from the analogies of nature, and also from the analogies of divine grace, they had great reason to be thankful that God had permitted the society to be instrumental in diffusing the light that it was to so large an extent through the colony. The publications of the society were of such a nature that no evangelical Christian, whatever denomination he might belong to, need be afraid to circulate them among his friends and neighbours. They contained the essence of Gospel truth; and then, what variety there was in the publications of the society! There were publications for the child in the nursery, for the schoolboy, for the student and for the theologian; publications fit for the drawing-room and for the kitchen; there were publications upon subjects historical, geographical, astronomical, and almost any other branch of knowledge; and the knowledge communicated had a Christian tone and bearing. This was of vast importance in the present day, when there were so many unsound publications in circulation among us—books dangerous to the young and the old; and which were undermining the foundations of Christian truth, sapping the foundations of Christian belief, and propagating heresy throughout the community. This Society was not only a disseminator of truth, it was also a safeguard against error. It enabled them in their respective spheres to lift up the standard of evangelical religion; it provided them with additional means of carrying on the Christian warfare. If they wished to provide themselves with ammunition from time to time wherewith to defeat the machinations of the enemy they might find it in the publications of the Religious Tract and Book Society of New South Wales. (Hear, hear.) The report referred to the operations of the Religious Tract Society of London, and he thought, looking at this institution as a branch of that Society, they ought to take into their view the results of that great institution. He could look back upon the time when its operations were very limited in comparison to what they were at the present time. One of the effects of the London Religious Tract Society had been to give a great stimulus to religious tract writing and distribution, and to improve the class of tracts produced. They had now various societies engaged in doing similar work, and various series of tracts emanating from different publishers, all of which had been brought into existence within the last few years; and he had no doubt they had been stimulated in a great measure by the operations of the institution to which he alluded. Therefore he looked upon the Religious Tract Society as a great benefactor to the world in that respect; for every one who produced good, and whose efforts had the effect of multiplying good was a benefactor in a double sense to his species. It was one of the great blessings of attempting to do good that good was always reproductive. (Hear, hear.) If they tried in one way to promote good, to lead men to a knowledge of salvation, they would find that they put in motion a machinery which again struck out some new mode of acting. (Hear, hear.) Therefore, the more they multiplied the means of doing good the more they would multiply new efforts which would be produced by those very means. When they considered how large a number of publications in various languages, European and Asiatic, were issued, they found that the society had been greatly assistant of missionary enterprize. It had sought to provide the Christian missionary with tracts which he might distribute among the heathen, and thereby communicate to them a knowledge of the Saviour. Where the missionary could not go himself he could send those little silent messengers, which might prepare the way for the preaching of the Gospel, which might break up the ground that should afterwards receive seed which might bring forth fruit unto life eternal. Thus far his thoughts had been directed to the operations of the society, and the advantages it had conferred upon this colony, and the Christian Church generally; but there was one part of the report which he confessed he heard with very great regret. We heard a great deal in the present day about the badness of the times, about insolvencies, and the difficulties of individuals, but he was not prepared to hear that this society was like so many others, involved in serious difficulties. They must not, however, be disheartened. If they would only put their shoulders to the wheel, he believed they could get the society out of those difficulties. He remembered hearing many years ago that it was the custom of gentlemen connected with the committee in England, if they thought some old sound book of divinity would do good by being reprinted and circulated, to make a handsome donation to the society for the purpose of getting the book stereotyped and a large edition published. It occurred to him that, if some such course as that were adopted, the society would be helped out of its difficulties. If a few gentlemen here were thus to unite, they might soon lessen the debt, and if others would consent to collect sums before another anniversary a different state of things would be shown. He trusted the committee would take the matter into their earnest consideration, and endeavour as speedily as possible to reduce if not liquidate the debt. Inasmuch as this was an institution for the dissemination of pure Gospel truths; because its publications contained so very large a measure of pure evangelical doctrine; because they were adapted to every class of society—to persons in all ranks and conditions in life; because it was an institution which by its extensive operations, was doing a vast amount of good, not only in these colonies, but also in other parts of the world—it deserved their support, their sympathy, and their prayers. (Hear, hear.) Therefore he had very great pleasure in moving the adoption of the resolution. (Cheers.)

The Rev. Mr. LEASHAM seconded the resolution. It was necessary that the society should have its report and its officers, and the resolution now proposed asked the meeting to sanction the adoption of the one and the appointment of the others. The report just read mentioned what had been done, what was required to be done, and what was proposed to be done. In all the enterprise for the spread of evangelical Christianity, and all the works that had been issued, none could have a better place than those of this society, and in the present state of society none could be more necessary. Men of the most illustrious and at the same time the most sanctified kind had imparted wisdom to its council, and added treasures to its stores, until now there were works of all descriptions, suited to all classes, and every variety of form that literature had assumed had been pressed into the service. The works and tracts of this society had found an entrance into many a family, into which the missionary and the minister of religion would never have made their way. Unassuming and unpretentious in their manner, and unsectarian and uncontroversial in their character, they were indeed Catholic in their applicability, and showed plainly how all sects of evangelical Christians might be one, in order that the world might believe that the Father sent his only Son to die for sinners. In such circumstances, it was incumbent on the friends of truth to be up and doing. Here was an instrument already formed to their hands, and in full operation, only awaiting their support. Would they refuse to give it? Would they suffer so great and praiseworthy a society to languish under the incumbrance of a heavy debt? Here was a country rich in all manner of natural productions, even to gold; should it be said of it that it was poor in Christian belief, in Christian enterprise? The debt must be removed. Let them make up their minds to that, and they would find that the effort would not be a very formidable one. A very small exertion would repay the debt and fill the treasury of the society. Let this be done then, and let a determined exertion be made to send that which had been proved to be so valuable, over the length and breadth of the land, until there should not be a shepherd's hut or a digger's tent in the whole colony in which some work of the society should not be found.

The CHAIRMAN, before putting the resolution, asked permission of the meeting to supply an omission made by the Very Rev. the Dean; and that was to read to the meeting the names of the committee and office-bearers mentioned in the first report of this society. The society was formed on the 18th August, 1823; the first treasurer was Mr. A. K. Mackenzie; and the first committee, Messrs. Chandler, G. Erskine, R. Hill, J. Hutchinson, and J. Stephen; and the first secretary, the Rev. W. Cowper, who was then, as he had been since, the staunch friend of the spread of religion. Of all those whose names he had just read, one and only one was alive; whilst the Rev. W. Cowper, whose name was appended to the first report as secretary, was, he believed, the originator of the Tract Society, if not of the Bible Society also. (Applause.)

The resolution was put and carried.

The Rev. W. CUTHBERTSON moved the second resolution, as follows :—"That the books and tracts issued from the Society's Depot, being so thoroughly adapted, by the blessing of God, both to convey knowledge of the highest character and to counteract any pernicious effects produced by the circulation of noxious literature, it is our imperative duty to avail ourselves of every opportunity to extend the operations of the society, and the dissemination of its publications." He must confess, that in reading this resolution, it sounded to him very much like an old friend; and if he was not very much mistaken, he had not only seen it before, but had also spoken to it more than once. But he supposed their secretary conceived that they could not have too much of a good thing, and that as the resolution had already done good service, that it was to be passed into action again. One felt pleased, even in a humble way, to be permitted to be a worker in the carrying out of any great purpose. Here, in this land, far from the great centre of religious power and influence, one felt that in joining with such a society as this, he was not altogether isolated from the great leading efforts of the Christian world; and that by this organisation he was aiding in carrying out the highest ideas of some of the highest minds. It seemed, indeed, to connect the people of this colony more intimately than aught else could do with the true heart of England, and with all that was highest and noblest there. The purpose that this society had set before itself seemed to him one of the highest and best that any society could have, and as such must commend itself to all minds; and in that light it was that this resolution based its claim to their assistance. The resolution said first that the literature of the society was thoroughly adapted, by the blessing of God, both to convey knowledge of the highest character, and also to counteract the ill effects of a noxious literature. This, they must all feel, stood out boldly as the prominent idea of the society, and they had evidence of the fact from the speeches of the two brethren who preceded him, who had both struck upon this particular point as a prominent one to keep before the meeting. The society was then doing work in the capacity here described, and it had a claim to the assistance of the meeting in that work. What was the work that this society proposed to do? To spread Christian knowledge throughout the country, and at the same time to spread knowledge upon all collateral subjects. A great writer had said that the true priesthood of the present day was the priesthood of letters. Now this assertion, though it contained a truth, was in the whole only half a truth; but who that had an eye to look back or a mind to think would deny the solemn and important truth that was contained in this assertion? Who for a moment would deny the wondrous power of letters. The humblest home, even as the most gorgeous palace, was not free from the power of the Press. The steam engine, the movable type, the printers' ink, and the reporters' pen formed the great power of the present age. Go where they would they would find the productions of the Press, if not those that were commendable, it would be those that would be injurious. Now was the Christian world to shut its eyes to this fact? Were they to stand out upon the old dogma, given up, he believed, in the present day by all churches, that ignorance was the mother of devotion? Or ought they not rather to use any means in their power to spread abroad the truth? They would be traitors to the great truth in which they believed if they did not do so. But he would tell them that, even if the Christian world did shut its eyes and endeavour to keep this out of sight, they would entirely fail to do so. They might tell a man that the sun did not shine, but they would have to put out his eyes before he would believe them. So in these days, when every matter that arose was so fully discussed in all quarters, he felt that it would not be allowable, as it would not be desirable, that the mind of man should be shut out from the consideration of very many things not strictly religious in their character. All he would ask, then, was that Christianity should have the same fair field as those that were opposed to it; and the Christian Churches would be traitors to their mission if they did not do so. What was required to serve the purposes of religion was that the feelings and the hearts of their fellow-men should be touched; and this Society came forward and said that though it might not perhaps be able to accomplish all that might be desired, still that it did, and was doing, something towards attaining that noble end. It was a calumny against them, as Christians and as men, to say, as had been said, that they placed themselves by joining this Society in antagonism with the general literature of the day. Such an assertion was utterly false, and had no atom of truth to sustain it. No; the position they took was unmistakably expressed in this resolution. The books of the society were capable of doing good service to the minds of those who read them, and contained knowledge which it was necessary that men should have, but which very many would be left without were it not supplied by the society. No; the society did not oppose good literature, but only that which was injurious and noxious. That which they conceived to be so they endeavoured as far as in their power to counteract. They were not the enemies of literature, nor did they mean to night to lend any influence to stop the circulation of general literature. God forbid that such should be their desire. If he thought that the resolution he moved, or that the object of the meeting had this in view, he for one would not be present, for he believed that Christian knowledge and power was sustained and strengthened by reading and thinking upon the matter that intellect and science had revealed to us in the works of men of genius. No, they said God speed to such intellects. But there was something more than this. When they came to consider the wants of humanity, and that which was deepest in our nature, and then looked at man as not limited to time, and not merely a material thing, nor simply as a reasoning being, but seeing him in the image of God, and feeling that he was related to the heavenly world—the society held that care must be taken that this part of his nature should be cultivated—that while the intellect was served, his soul should have bread. That was their position. He was certain that none would deny the truth of the proposition. Then, they claimed the co-operation and assistance, in sympathy, prayers, and monetary help upon this ground that those present, as others of the Christian religion, would like to take part in spreading Divine truths until every man should know and in that knowledge be saved. And how were they doing this—what where their methods? The Society was attempting to do this by the publication of literature, written in a religious spirit, and some works with a directly religious purpose. It appeared to him that the originators and conductors of this Society acted upon this wise consideration—they did not provide expressly for those with means and leisure, but remembering that the great mass of our fellow-beings had not such cultivated intellect, or extent of means as to be in a position to grasp the highest works of science and genius, they put forward knowledge upon all temporal matters from a religious point of view, they did not shut up God from his own world, but showed his work in providence, and how religion would sanctify and beautify the most humble home, and how Christianity would fill that home with holiness and love. In this way they sought to make Christianity operate upon the masses, so that they might feel it not only as a dogma but a loving power suited to themselves. He did not mean to say anything in disparagement of the mental power and ability displayed in the productions which the Society issued; many of the publications would task the minds of most to master, but he believed there were many young men with ambition enough and lofty aspirations, who brought these works within the compass of their powers, and by this mode of Christian education became enabled to take a prominent part in every Christian and social reform. The truths of these productions could be traced back to the Book of God, which was beautifully said to make wise the simple. Men were not only instructed through the brain; he believed that much passed through the heart to the brain, and he knew that this was the case from actual experience. Men, especially in the lower walks of life, were frequently by some influence upon their feelings awakened to literary enquiry, and when this was associated with Christian devotion the whole soul and intellect became widely expanded. Much of this work had been done by the society. It had not only to circulate great truths, but to meet noxious influences, which must be overcome before the slightest progress was made. It was said that the gift given by the Father could be prostituted to him who was his greatest enemy. He would grant that there were cases where it ought to be put down by the law, such as malicious violations of those moral feelings which were participated in by nearly all; they would deaden everything spiritual, devastate everything heavenly, and rob us of our dearest hopes. But there were a larger class of literature which did not come under this category. How was this to be treated? Some literature came into the hands of the people, which like the blessed orb of day spread light, and peace, and blessedness. He did not think there was much infidelity in this colony, which he thought was to a great extent due to the respectability of our booksellers, who would not lend themselves to the sale of low and degrading matters of merchandise. Still, such literature would get among the people, appealing by insinuation, illustration, and description, to the baser passions. No true Christian was afraid to meet infidel arguments, but he should feel that he was degrading himself, and the high truths in which he believed, if he attempted to reply to the wild insane rallings of spouters at Hyde Park, who had not made themselves acquainted with a little history, or acquired even a moderate degree of information connected with the topics upon which they dwelt. These people were not likely to mislead many young men; what he was afraid of was that pictorial and descriptive literature, which excited feelings which ought to be crushed out. There was another thing he would refer to. There were many young men of the present day affected by a kind of metaphysic morality, ignoring the essence of our common Christianity. Into the hands of these even the society could put publications they could not despise. They were not to make such a young man feel that he must submit his intellect to Christianity; but to say to him, "You have read Emerson and Strauss; here is Butler, try your hand upon him." They would require as much intellect to understand the first chapter as they had wasted upon the whole works of their favourite authors. He believed the society was carrying out its purposes silently, working on the minds of many young men, sending messages of Christian hope and comfort to the mechanic in his labour; and it was because he thought the society was doing this in a thoroughly unsectarian manner, yet in a manly, plain, and zealous spirit, that he had much pleasure in moving this resolution.

Captain WILLIAMS came before the meeting as one of the tract distributors, and he was desirous of telling them a little about his proceedings. He narrated several instances in which he had boarded ships in the harbour for the purpose of distributing tracts to the seamen, stated how he was generally received with a becoming spirit, and how in one instance he felt constrained to pray at the bedside of a sick seaman and point his soul to the Redeemer, telling him that although it was the eleventh hour he might still be saved. Referring to his endeavours to promote sobriety and abstinence from swearing, he alluded to the circumstance that one morning, when going aboard his ship, he met two of his men going to the public-house; he stopped them, entered into a long conversation with them upon the evils of drunkenness, and in the end they said he was right, and determined to proceed no further towards the tavern. He went on Saturday evening, taking with him for distribution copies of the British Workman, the Band of Hope Review, and several other publications. (Applause.) He went on his usual mission, and he saw those two men again. One was sitting down weeping, and the other was also overtaken by conviction. They told him they had drank nothing the whole day; that they had made up their minds to become sober men. He had been away to England since he first spoke to them; he had returned, and he still found these two men leading a sober life. (Applause.) With such results to achieve, surely it was a duty and a pleasure to go about doing good. It was a pleasing thing to lead a fellow-creature into the way of truth, and in doing this, much valuable assistance was afforded by the tracts and publications of the society. On Sabbath last he had distributed 300 or 400 tracts on board the different vessels in the harbour; he had met with scarcely a single rebuff. He made it a custom in giving the tracts to speak also to the men of their eternal welfare, not in a proselytising strain, but in a kindly Christian spirit, reminding them of the consequences of neglecting God and living in a state of wickedness. One poor man told him that he should die happy enough if he only had a glass of rum in his mouth, but he (Captain Williams) took no notice of rebuffs like this. He felt that he was engaged in a good work, and he prayed God to enlighten and assist him by opening men's hearts to the truths which he was trying to disseminate. (Applause.) He spoke to this man sternly but kindly, warning him of what was said in the sacred book, and he believed he had not been wholly unsuccessful in his endeavour to bring him to a better way of thinking. He had known great good effected by the tracts of the society. In distributing them he had an opportunity of speaking to and advising men who might otherwise not hear of those divine truths which it was so desirable to spread abroad. By such means he knew men who formerly bore a dissipated battered appearance that were now leading sober industrious lives—gaining the confidence and respect of all those who knew them. (Applause.) It was no easy task to go on board a number of ships to speak to men, some of whom were disposed to turn all such things into ridicule. But this difficulty did not deter him. He felt that he was employed in a good—a holy cause; he felt encouraged, and that the blessing of God would follow his labours. (Applause.) There were difficulties to encounter, but if he succeeded in bringing only one single soul into the paths of truth and righteousness, that would be a sufficient reward for all his exertions. (Applause.) The society had done a vast deal of good, and he hoped it would be supported in the prosecution of its noble mission. It struck him that the assistance of a few young men, to go about visiting on board ship in the way he had described, would be most valuable. They need not be clergymen, but young laymen who had the fear of God before them, and who were willing to lend their aid in so good a cause. These young men, going in twos and twos—for he would not advise them to go singly—would effect much by mingling with the seamen, telling them of the necessity of attending Divine worship, and pointing out to them the various churches and chapels where free seats were reserved for them, and where they could hear the word of God spoken and explained. A system of this kind was in operation in London, and he believed the appointments of lay agents here would also prove very beneficial. It was a sweet and glorious thing to be doing good. (Applause.) It was sweet to be a humble labourer in the vineyard of the Lord. He would rather be a poor doorkeeper in the house of God, than be rich and a dweller in the tents of the wicked. (Applause.) If we had the secret of God to impart, his blessing would overcome all obstacles, and no rebuff would dishearten us. What was there on earth to equal the pleasure of doing good—of working in the cause of God? Life was short at the best, but at its close what a glorious consolation to think that we have laboured, however unprofitably, for the welfare of our fellow-creatures and the cause of God. (Applause.) He did hope most sincerely to see some young Christian men give themselves to the work. If they entered upon it in a spirit of their Master, they would effect much. Their labours would stop much of that desecration of the Sabbath day that now unhappily prevailed; and they would feel, as he himself felt, that God was with them, and that the cause must triumph in the end. He had very great pleasure in seconding the resolution which had been so ably moved by the rev. gentlemen who preceded him. (Applause.)

The CHAIRMAN put the resolution to the meeting, when it was passed unanimously.

The Rev. S. WILKINSON moved the third resolution, as follows, viz. :—"That this meeting, acknowledging the wisdom and goodness of God in establishing such an agency in this colony, and in maintaining it thus far, do pledge ourselves to renewed efforts, increasing contributions, and more earnest prayer." The reverend gentleman after explaining that he had attended the meeting only as a listener without any expectation of being called on to speak), observed that the resolution expressed exactly his own thoughts and feelings in reference to the blessed society—in support of which they were assembled. He rejoiced to know the great influence it was exerting, and the wide-spread benefits which it had been the means of conferring. An experience of twenty-two years, (during which period he had travelled much about the districts of this colony), enabled him to say that this society had proved a valuable auxiliary in the spreading of gospel truths; starting on any journey, it had always been his custom, in addition to his bible and hymn-book, to put a good bundle of tracts into his saddle-bags for distribution to those whom he might fall in with. After relating a couple of interesting anecdotes of his experiences as a distributor of tracts in the interior, the reverend gentleman concluded by expressing a hope that the difficulties under which the society at present laboured would speedily be removed by the liberality of its friends and patrons.

The Rev. S. C. KENT seconded the resolution. He said he should not detain the meeting with a speech, as there was a collection to be made in aid of the funds, and he had noticed that some of their friends were already moving homewards. (Applause and laughter).

The CHAIRMAN said that to compensate in some way for the unexpected brevity of the speech of his rev. friend, he would introduce to them a native of China—Mr. Leau Appa, to support the resolution.

Mr. LEAU APPA then came forward and said he felt very great pleasure in meeting with so many Christian friends. He hoped they would excuse him for making so free to address them, but he wished to make a few remarks. There were a great many Chinamen in the colony who knew nothing of the religion of Jesus Christ. He thought it would be better if there was some one to teach them the English language; to take tracts to them, and go among them to teach the light of the Gospel. He thought it would do much good. He had received some copies of the New Testament in Chinese, and tracts also from Mr. Morrison, of the Bible Association, and some tracts from a friend. He was glad to get them, and some of the Chinese to whom he gave them were glad to get them also. Some read and appeared to understand them and others did not. They wanted some one to explain the contents of the books to them. When he had time, he read to them and explained what he read. He very much liked to do this, and would prefer to go round and do it day by day, if he had time, but he had his little business to attend to, and could not afford to neglect it. He very much wished that they had some one to teach them reading, for that would very materially help them to become Christians. He hoped they would excuse him for the broken disconnected way in which he had spoken.

He wished he knew more of the English language, that he might be able to address them better. They must pray to God to show them the light and the right way, so that they may all become true Christians as one.

The resolution was then put and passed nem con.

The CHAIRMAN announced that a collection would be made at the doors, and as there was, as they had heard, a great debt on the society, he hoped they would give as liberally as they could.

The DEAN OF SYDNEY pronounced the benediction, and the meeting broke up at half-past nine o'clock.

CAMPBELLTOWN.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

ON Tuesday evening the adjourned annual meeting of the School of Arts took place, at the Court-house, at seven o'clock, Mr. T. LEARY, J.P., in the chair.

Mr. HOLMAN, the secretary, read the following

REPORT.

In accordance with the custom of similar public institutions, your committee, on the close of their period of office, present a statement of the past progress and present condition of this institution. A review of the operations of this society since its establishment to the present time, though it may not present a very brilliant catalogue of useful events, or of such as may afford a subject for a gratifying retrospect, yet, when the adverse circumstances are taken into account, which were calculated to impede the efforts of its advocates, it will be less a matter of astonishment that it has failed to be as vigorous as it was desirable it should have done in the time, than that it has borne up against so much discouragement and unmerited apathy on the part of the public. The persevering efforts of a few have upheld the institution, and your committee deem it highly gratifying that they can resign their trust in the full assurance that all that could be accomplished under the circumstances has been effected, and it has been preserved free from debt.

It will be unnecessary to urge on the public that which they are already aware of—the utility and very great importance of literary institutions of this description,—but we would, however, earnestly claim for this Society in future, a more general and liberal support. The subscription list is at present and has not been at any time in proportion to the number and importance of the population of this district; and we hope that when the proceedings of the Society are fairly laid before the public, and its usefulness made known by a clear and truthful statement of its efforts and effects; the inherent aspirations after knowledge and the love of science and truth, which is the distinguishing characteristic of elevated beings, will engender a warm advocacy, and stimulate the public to rally round our young and prominent institution, and place it beyond the chance or apprehension of ever sinking in decay.

Having thus made some general remarks your committee deem it necessary to enter on some details connected with the Society, which may be satisfactory to the public to know, and first as regards the lectures delivered since the establishment of the institution.

There have numbered thirteen, and were delivered in the following order, viz.—

1. On the Advantages of Mechanics' School of Arts, by Rev. J. Gibson.
2. Physical Science, Rev. D. Boyd.
3. Advantages of Chemistry, Dr. Bell.
4. History of the Art of Painting, Mr. J. T. Dennis.
5. Useful Inventions, Rev. E. Smith.
6. British India, Rev. Mr. M'Kee.
7. Jamaica and its People, Rev. J. Gibson.
8. Kosmic-Biology, Mr. Hanson.
9. Chemistry, with Experiments, Rev. D. Boyd.
10. Physical Education, Dr. Bell.
11. Internal Communication, Captain Martindale.
12. An Address to Youth, Mr. W. Gordon.
13. Overland Route, Mr. Montefiore.
14. Wit and Humour, Mr. Sinclair.
15. Modern Marvels, Mr. Sinclair.

Your committee trust that the efforts of the office bearers for the ensuing twelve months, will be strenuously directed in furthering such an important matter, as the regular delivery of suitable lectures.

THE LIBRARY.

Through the liberality of several gentlemen and friends to the Institution, a nucleus for a library has been formed, but your committee regret to state, that in consequence of want of funds, they have been unable to increase it to any considerable extent. The donations of books have been as follows:—Mr. Leary, 74 vols.; Rev. J. Gibson, 30 vols.; Rev. W. M'Kee, 4 vols.; Dr. Bell, 14 vols.; Mr. Dennis, 4 vols.; Mr. Turner, 14 vols.; Mr. Dary, 3 vols.; Mrs. Howe, 10 vols.; Mr. Borgia, 12 vols.; Mr. Brown, 3 vols.; Mr. Fowler, 5 vols.; purchased by the committee 53 vols. making a total of 218 volumes.

READING ROOM.

This room is open every week day for the convenience of subscribers, and is well supplied with papers, and periodicals, among which your committee may enumerate the Sydney Herald, Empire, Goulburn Herald, Illawarra Register, Illustrated London News, Home News, Chamber's Journal, Eclectic, and other magazines and papers; and your committee deem it their bounden duty to acknowledge the great obligation the Society is under to the Bench of Magistrates for their kindness in not only granting them the use of this room, but also the courthouse for the purpose of lectures. The want of which would have been a serious drawback to the welfare of the society, as no other suitable place was or is obtainable in the town.

The treasurer's statement of receipts and expenditure is as follows :—

Dr.
To amount paid for books		£6	1 0
To ditto ditto for magazines, newspapers, candles, &c., as per account rendered		31	5 6
Balance carried down		7	18 11
		£47	5 5
Cr.
By proceeds of lectures		£13	6 5
Donations		4	3 0
To book fund by Rev. E. Smith		1	0 0
Entrance fees and subscriptions		28	14 0
		£47	5 5
Balance in hand		£7	18 11

In conclusion your committee beg leave to record their thanks to Mr. Fowler for his handsome offer of a piece of land for building purposes, and suggest that application be immediately made to the Colonial Parliament to place a sum on the supplementary Estimates for enabling the Society to build a School of Arts, when subscriptions for that purpose will warrant them in so doing.

It was then proposed and seconded that, "the report now read be adopted." The following propositions were unanimously carried, that "the thanks of the society be given to the past officers of the institution; "that the following gentlemen act as a committee for the ensuing twelve months, viz., the Revs. E. Smith, J. Gibson, J. Rocke, W. M'Kee, D. Boyd, Dr. Bell, Messrs Leary, Chippendall, Evans, Cobb, Dennis, and Fowler." Mr. Evans was appointed treasurer, and the Rev. J. Gibson secretary, with Mr. George Fowler as librarian. The meeting was numerously and respectably attended, and at the termination of the present proceedings, the chairman called on the Rev. David Boyd, who made some remarks on reading and elocution, and quoted Sheridan Knowles and other authors. Mr. Leary followed by reading an excellent poem, entitled "Advice to Emigrants going to Australia," by Campbell, and Dr. Bell concluded the proceedings of the evening with some portions of an original narrative of a voyage to Australia, in 1858-9. This was altogether a lengthened evening work, but withal every one seemed highly pleased, and an impetus has been given which will push on the work of the society in earnest for the future. On every Tuesday evening, at seven o'clock, there will either be readings or a lecture, and the committee have determined on a strict adherence to this. Several persons came forward to enrol their names, and in a few weeks, there is no doubt we shall find the society in the most prosperous state it ever was.

On Tuesday next the Rev. J. Gibson will give a lecture on the Aborigines of Australia, to be followed on the next ensuing lecture night by Rev. D. Boyd, on Elocution, and Dr. Bell, on the Microscope.

TASMANIA.

OUR dates from Hobart Town are to the 31st ultimo, and to the 1st instant from Launceston.

The Mercury states that the Government has prepared an authentic statement on the subject of the unoccupied lands of Tasmania, for circulation in England.

The same journal of 30th ultimo says :—To-morrow Mr. Francis Smith retires from political office and political life, and on Thursday morning will take his place on the bench of the Supreme Court of the colony. Since the prospect of a vacancy on the bench was first entertained, attention has remained fixed on the Attorney-General as the only possible successor of Mr. Horne, and it was felt that not only his political position but his personal and professional qualifications rendered his appointment a necessity. So far as the judicial requirements of the colony are concerned, it is a matter of public congratulation that Mr. Smith has found himself at liberty to accept the seat offered him. Whatever differences of opinion may exist as to many of his political acts; and however men may view the policy of his government, we believe it will be admitted on all hands with a frank cordiality, that he has lent to the discharge of his high and responsible duties not only eminent talents and high legal attainments, but an industry, a perseverance, and a conscientiousness that have rendered his tenure of office as useful to the country as it has been honourable to himself. Consequent upon the elevation of Mr. Smith, we believe that Mr. Weston will become the head of the Cabinet, which will be completed by the addition to the present members of Mr. Knight as Attorney-General; that gentleman being succeeded as Solicitor-General by Mr. Dobson.

On the afternoon of the 26th ultimo, says the Mercury, a most bold and daring attempt

The Celebrated Glenlee Dairy.
Most Important Sale of the Stock of this far-famed dairy, together with the Dairy Utensils,
Working Bullocks
Drays, Waggons
Draught and Blood Horses
Ploughs, Harrows
Winnowing Machines, Horse Rakes, and
A Superior Lot of Pigs.

The special attention of Dairymen, Breeders, Farmers, Dealers, Private Families, and others, is directed to the present opportunity of selecting from this choice herd of well bred DAIRY CATTLE such stock as may meet their varied requirements.
In submitting the whole to public auction the proprietress has resisted many applications to purchase privately in small lots. The entire herd without one being culled, will be unreservedly submitted to the judgment of all those who may be practically interested, or whose bucolic tendencies lead them to admire perfection, in this department of pastoral pursuits.
The produce of this CELEBRATED DAIRY has always been eagerly sought after in the Sydney market, and constantly commanded the highest market price, and this best of all practical proofs (which any housekeeper of the metropolis will corroborate) stamps the high character of the cattle and their peculiar adaptation to dairy purposes. Nay; were the auctioneer to require any support in this respect he would unhesitatingly call on the dairy farmers of that garden of the colony, the Illawarra district, who, justly prizing the produce of their own dairies, would yet yield the palm to the FAMED DAIRY OF GLENLEE.

THOMAS DAWSON has been favoured with instructions from Mrs. William Howe to submit to public competition, without the slightest reserve, (in consequence of the expiry of the lease of the Glenlee Estate), on TUESDAY, the 18th, and WEDNESDAY, the 19th December, commencing each day at half-past 10 o'clock,
The whole of the dairy cows, springers, and heifers, now depasturing on the celebrated Glenlee Estate, 130 of which are cows in full milk; the remainder are cows and heifers forward in calf and springing, and heifers over one year old.
The symmetry, beauty, and splendid condition of the above herd can only be appreciated by a visit to their pastures. The auctioneer is authorised to invite inspection prior to the sale; and by thus courting the criticism of judges to all that is to be admired in the animal, it should not be forgotten that their extraordinary docility is not among the least of their many good qualities. The whole of the cows are broken to milch without their calves, and the greater proportion without either bale or leg-rope.
A catalogue will be issued on the days of sale, with an individual description of each animal.
The bulls are first-class animals, of the Durham and Ayrshire breeds, out of imported cows.
Dairy Utensils.—Corn bins, brunch churns, patent metallic churn, imported from C. D. Young, London, winnowing machine, a team of 12 splendid working bullocks, thoroughly broken and quiet, with bows, yokes, and chains complete.
4 drays and one waggon
2 ploughs, harness, rollers, and horse hay rake, &c.
The horse stock consists of
2 draught colts, 2 years old
1 ditto ditto, yearling
1 blood filly, 2 years old
1 ditto mare, broken to saddle, with foal at foot, by Sultan, in foal again by Phenomenon
1 bay mare, broken to saddle, in foal by Brown Prince
1 blood mare, broken to saddle, 3 years old
Also a number of very fine pigs.
The auctioneer having made a personal inspection of the Glenlee herd, is in a position to assert that the cattle are the choicest ever submitted to public auction, or, in fact, to be found in any of the colonies, and is expressly instructed by the proprietress to state that only four head of the pure Glenlee breed have left the estate the last nine months. The young unbranded stock will be removed prior to the sale.
A luncheon will be provided.
Parties arriving by train on the days of sale at Campbell Town will find conveyances to conduct them to the Glenlee Estate, which is only four miles from the station.
Intending purchasers are specially invited to inspect the cattle, which will be collected in the home paddocks a few days prior to the sale.
No delivery will be given until Thursday, the 20th, after the sale is concluded, and in announcing this arrangement the auctioneer would particularly impress on all those concerned that the sale is bona fide, and his positive instructions are to sell to the highest bidder.
Terms:—Under £50, cash; over £50 to £200, twenty-five per cent. cash, the remainder by approved endorsed bill at three months; above £200, twenty-five per cent. cash, and the residue by approved endorsed bills at three and six months.

It must be remembered that on the completion of the bridge between Pyrmont and Glebe Island, these lands will all be brought within a FEW MINUTES' WALK OF SYDNEY, and their value will then become very different to anything they have ever yet attained to.
. With the assistance of the above summary, a glance at the lithograph of the estate will enable intending purchasers at once to ascertain what lots are now being brought forward, and thus make their choice prior to the sale.

With the CURRY FLAT run will be sold

. Stores, implements, stockhorses, working bullocks, drays, &c; to be taken at a valuation in the usual way.

LINTHORPE ESTATE, NEWTOWN,

Including that commodious Family Residence

LINTHORPE HOUSE,

with the EXTENSIVE GROUNDS, containing an area of about SEVENTEEN ACRES, in the CENTRE AND MOST VALUABLE PORTION OF NEWTOWN, a few yards distant from the RAILWAY STATION.

Title—unquestionable. For full particulars apply to Messrs. JOHNSON and JOHNSON, Solicitors, Pitt-street.

Terms liberal.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from R. M. Robey, Esq., to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Bank-buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 17th December, at 11 o'clock,

The whole of the valuable and extensive suburban estate,

LINTHORPE HOUSE is approached from the Newtown Road by a lodge gate, entering to a winding carriage drive, bordered on each side with choice shrubberies and a collection of rare plants.

It is substantially built of brick on stone foundation, cemented and painted, and on the south-east side is sheltered by a spacious flagged verandah, sixty-four feet long by nearly nine feet wide. It contains on the GROUND FLOOR—handsome entrance hall, dining-room twenty-four feet by fifteen, drawing-room twenty feet by twenty, sitting-room or library, and six bedrooms, butler's pantries, closets, &c.; on the FIRST FLOOR there are four large and airy bedrooms.

 The whole of the internal fittings are executed in a substantial and handsome manner, the principal rooms being finished with polished cedar, and fitted with register-grates and marble mantel-pieces,—the entire building being now in capital order, and ready for immediate occupation.

The roof is well guttered, and fitted with spouting leading to a large reservoir, containing upwards of 8000 gallons of water, and affording a constant supply in the driest seasons.

The OUTBUILDINGS are numerous, and very complete; they comprise large kitchen, 22 feet by 14, fitted with a good cooking-range; also, one of Russell's best roasting stoves, and pantry, with servant's room over; a capital laundry, fitted with copper, large oven, &c.

The stables are of a substantial order; they contain double coach-house and three good stalls, with large hay loft. There are also several other out-buildings, including stabling, cart-sheds, fowl-house, &c., enclosing a good yard.

This extensive estate contains an area of 16 acres 2 roods and 22 perches, which are divided into two nearly equal parts by the Southern Railway,—having gates and right of level crossing-place. The upper portion comprises the grounds attached to the house; tastefully laid out, divided into lawns, parterres filled with choice flowers, large vegetable garden, orchard, and convenient well-grassed paddocks. The lower portion contain about seven acres, and is securely enclosed, forming a large grass paddock with good water-hole thereon.

The latter will be sold in a separate lot if desired.

In addition to the numerous out-offices, the grounds also contain the LODGE—a neat brick building—and a capital gardener's cottage, cow-shed, &c.

Linthorpe is situated at the junction of Wilson-street (a few yards from the Newtown Road) and the Erskineville Road, having frontages of about

1015 feet to Wilson-street, and

1410 feet to Erskineville Road.

The locality is rapidly rising in public estimation, and a large portion of these frontages might be at once subdivided and sold from the estate, as sites for suburban retreats, without in the least interfering with the privacy of the house or the quantity of ornamental grounds necessary for a family residence of this class.

 The approach to the entrance from the Newtown Road has been widened by the corner allotment of land forty-six feet frontage to the Newtown Road, adjoining the Wesleyan church, being made a permanent reserve for that purpose, and the fee simple of which will be included with the Linthorpe Estate, as now offered for sale.

☞ In bringing this valuable property into the market, the auctioneers are desirous of impressing on capitalists the immense prospective value it enjoys. Newtown is now a continuation of the city, divided from it only by the University grounds, having within its district boundaries a population of nearly 10,000 inhabitants, and it will be readily admitted that an estate of seventeen acres in its very centre, with extensive road frontage a few yards from the Railway Station, and most advantageously situated, will, independent of the extensive improvements, realise an enormous sum if opportunity offered, as a subdivision. To substantiate this it may be remarked, that the Kingston Estate, a few yards from Linthorpe, but not possessing so many advantages, has been sold for upwards of £500 per acre nett.

This sale, therefore, affords, as an investment, an opportunity (which will again rarely occur) for securing a first-class family mansion, with spacious ornate grounds, as well as a profitable speculation in a favourite and improving locality.

Cards to view may be obtained, and plans inspected at the Rooms.

Terms at sale.

All that piece of land having a frontage of 30 feet to the south side of the South Head Road, commencing 90 feet from the north-western corner of Lucas' land, and extending a depth of 96 feet to

Also, that piece of land having a frontage of 30 feet to a wide reserved road, and running back a depth of about 104 feet, extending to and adjoining the first named piece of land, the two pieces forming one block, having 30 feet frontage to the South Head Road, 30 feet frontage to a reserved road, by a depth of about 200 feet.

☞ The above block of land is most eligibly situated, and is suitable either for a villa site or business premises.
